Hits Sabotage In Longer Draft Protest

MARSHALL SAYS MEN EGGED ON BY OUTSIDERS

Asserts Organized Movement Exists To Hamper Army Effort.

'BOYS VICTIMIZED'

Chief of Staff Rejects All Compromise Proposals To Time Extension.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — General George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, today charged existence of an organized movement to sabotage the army by arousing draftees to protest against extending their twelve-month period of training.

Testifying before the house military affairs committee, Gen. Marshall declared that "we have got to deal with it—we have got to treat them as soldiers."

Gen. Marshall bitterly assailed organized efforts which he said were being made to get soldiers to sign telegrams or petitions urging congress to turn down his proposal to keep draftees, guardsmen and reserves in training more than a year.

"I regard these moves as sabotage of the most dangerous sort," he declared. "We cannot have a political club and call it an army."

Marshall said he had received a telegram from Lieut. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, of New York, commander of the first army, declaring that these efforts were being made "by some groups outside the army."

Drum, in a radio message to his troops, declared that signing by soldiers of such petitions was a violation of military regulations, Marshall said.

"I won't have these boys victimized," Marshall declared. "I don't want that kind of an army.

"To have everybody stirred up and agitated is most unfortunate. The business of soldering involves lots of unpleasantness. We are doing all we can to lessen that,—more than ever has been done before, and in spite of all this agitation we have the highest morale I have ever seen in any army."

Marshall flatly rejected compromise proposals in urging the house military affairs committee to carry out his training program.

"I am most disturbed by suggestions for temporary expedients, temporizing, patchwork pro-

Get Ready to Send Questionnaires to 21-er Draft Crop

Richland county draft boards had started to insert the names of 21-year-old registrants in their lists today, but board clerks pointed out that none of the new group of registrants probably will be called for training before the middle of August.

The boards received their "master lists" from Washington yesterday, showing the order in which the new names must be inserted in existing lists of prospective selectees. Board 3 has already distributed the new names through its list and the other boards were expected to complete the job this week.

Board 1 will insert the name of a 21-year-old registrant after every 14th name on the list, while the other two boards will place a new name in the lists after every 13th name. Fre-

City's Police Traffic Squad Strikes Snag

One of Five Appointees Declines Post; Delays Start of Work.

Organization of Mansfield's new traffic squad was delayed today with the announcement that one of the five men appointed had declined to accept the post.

Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton said that Charles P. Robnolte, 728 West Fourth street, a guard at Ohio State reformatory, would not accept his appointment.

Robnolte was one of five men named Saturday by Mayor William J. Locke. The reformatory guard's objections were based on the salary paid for the position. Men on the new traffic squad will be paid $110 monthly.

At his present post, Robnolte is paid a higher salary. He is married and has three children and had only recently gone to work at the reformatory, formerly being a service station worker. He had taken the police civil service examination prior to accepting the reformatory position.

Appointed along with Robnolte were his brother, Robert E. Robnolte, Richard Hecht, Robert L. Garver and R. R. Hout. The appointments are effective Aug. 1.

Police Chief Meade K. Bates announced that he will withhold the appointment of a traffic commissioner to head the new squad until all of the five men are appointed.

Delay of the commissioner's appointment will in turn postpone training of the new men. Original plans were that the commissioner would train the men at nights for the remainder of this month before they went on duty.

The absence of Mayor William J. Locke, who is on a Canadian fishing trip, will place the task of appointing the fifth traffic man to Crafton, the city's legal appointing authority.

Crafton said that he had asked the Civil service commission to supply him with the names of the next three men certified as eligible for appointment as a traffic policeman.

Locke considered nine names in selecting the five appointees, discarding four, three because they were not qualified motorcycle operators and the fourth because he was doing Army service.

QUESTIONS PAIR

Prosecutor Quizes Man, Wife In Jefferson Murder.

JEFFERSON—(AP)— Prosecutor Roland Pontius today questioned Nick Nemic, 42, and his pretty wife Alice, 31, before ordering them arraigned on first degree murder charges in the month-old slaying of Nemic's aged mother, Mrs. Catherine Nemic, 62.

The two were returned from Seattle, Wash., last night by Roy C. Ritter, Ashtabula county sheriff. After scheduling the hearing before Justice of the Peace Wade Woodbury, Pontius said he probably would recall the grand jury to study the evidence.

The Nemic's four-year-old son Paul accompanied the party back from the west coast and is being cared for here by friends. The father and mother are being held in county jail without bond.

Face Court Fight for Guggenheim Fortune

Four showgirls, three of whom are shown above, are going to have a fight to collect portions of the million dollar estate left to them in its entirety by the late William Guggenheim, retired industrialist and amateur poet. Mrs. Guggenheim who was left nothing under terms of the will made public yesterday announced this morning that she would contest the document. Guggenheim died June 27. Attorneys for Mrs. Guggenheim said that when the will is filed for probate "she will come in and assert her statutory right to one-third of the estate." Under New York laws, a man must make provision in his will for his widow. Guggenheim in his will excluded his wife and son from the estate with the explanation that "I have made ample provision for them during my lifetime." He specified that the showgirls should "share and share alike" in his estate. The girls who were named to share the Guggenheim fortune are Mildred Borst, formerly of Ziegfeld and Earl Carroll Revues, Lilyan Andrus, who was Miss America in 1929, Mary Alice Rice, formerly of the Ziegfeld Follies, and Florence Sullivan, another former showgirl. Shown above are, left to right, Miss Andrus, Miss Rice, and Miss Borst.

HUNDREDS JAM WILLARD COURT

Crowd Waits to See Woman Bound To Grand Jury In Husband's Murder.

WILLARD—Accused of fatally wounding her 46-year-old husband, Louis Rothlisberger, with a Boy Scout hunting knife, Mrs. Emma Jean Rothlisberger, 25, of Willard was held without bond today to the Huron county grand jury on a first-degree murder charge following a hearing last night which drew hundreds of spectators.

Because of the huge crowd, Mayor E. L. Wolff conducted the preliminary hearing in the council chamber at the city building. Spectators overflowed the room, peered in at the windows, and climbed on top of cars outside to see the accused slayer.

Mrs. Rothlisberger entered no formal plea at the hearing in Mayor Wolff's court. In a statement to the court, however, she denied plunging the knife into the victim's groin.

Only witnesses at the hearing were Patrolman Omer Sherbundy

VOTING TODAY

Plymouth Deciding on Muny Electric Plant Proposal.

Voters in Plymouth went to the polls today in a special referendum to decide whether the village shall finance and build a municipal light plant.

The proposal for a municipally-owned plant has involved a heated campaign in the village and today's vote is expected to be heavy. Richland county election board officials predicted that from 400 to 500 votes would be cast in the village precinct in this county.

Plymouth is on the Richland Huron county line and has one precinct in each county. The votes will be tabulated tonight by the election boards of both counties.

A majority vote today in favor of the light plant will authorize Plymouth officials to employ an engineer to draw plans for the plant and estimate the cost. The village then must find means of financing the cost.

SPLIT ON DRAFT

Family Of Representative Can't Agree On Time Extension.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—The family of Rep. Frances Bolton, R., Cleveland, is divided over the issue of extending the training period of draftees and national guardsmen.

Mrs. Bolton is opposed to it but her two sons, Kenyon and Oliver, both in training in Camp Forrest, Tenn., are in favor of the proposal. "My boys feel the need to hold the men in training is imperative," Mrs. Bolton said today.

SHOWER OF POTS, PANS CONTINUES

Results of Aluminum Drive Exceeding Expectations, Carrigan Says.

Mansfield's campaign for old aluminum for defense industries, which moved into the Third ward today, is exceeding expectations, according to James F. Carrigan, city campaign chairman.

The heap of old pots and pans at the west side of Central park is growing rapidly as trucks return from the residential districts and the county's rural areas with loads of discarded aluminum utensils. Everything from small cups to washing machines have been thrown at Hitler's effigy above the aluminum heap.

The city campaign will receive new impetus tomorrow when the Ritz theater will present a 10 a. m. show and accept aluminum articles as payment for tickets. W. E. Bradford and Woodrow Mehl will be in charge of the aluminum collection at the theater, Carrigan said.

Old aluminum pots and pans will be good for admission to the Mansfield Braves-Lima Pandas baseball game at 8 p. m. Friday at the Fairground. J. M. Buchanan, Henry Brinkman, and W. H. Zeigler, representing the Mansfield chapter of the Marine Corps league, will be in charge of the collection at the ball game. They will be identified by their Marine Corps uniforms, Carrigan said.

The city campaign will move to the Fourth ward Thursday and Fifth ward Friday as trucks make the rounds of the city districts collecting the aluminum.

O-B, Union Still At Odds, Workers To Meet Tonight

Conferences at Cleveland yesterday with a federal labor conciliator failed to produce any change in the controversy between the Ohio Brass company and its union employes. The latter were called to meet tonight to consider their next step.

Separate conferences were held yesterday with the conciliator by company representatives and officials of Local No. 758, United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers (CIO), over the status of Joseph Sferro, foundryman, who was discharged by the company, which alleged refusal to perform his duties. The union, claiming Sferro was ill and unable to work, has demanded his reinstatement.

The union called a one-day "work holiday" at the Ohio

Two-Cent Increase In Bread Price Looms for Mansfield

A two-cent increase in the price of bread in Mansfield and other Ohio cities loomed today as the Ohio Bakers association, representing 700 bakers, announced that an increase is "imperative" to meet rising food costs.

While Mansfield bakers said they planned no immediate increase in bread prices, they added that the increasing cost of materials probably would mean higher bread prices "before long."

Most of the city's bakeries already have raised the price of cakes, rolls, and pastries from eight to 10 per cent, bakers said.

Representatives of the Ohio Bakers association said bread ingredients have increased at least 30 per cent in price in recent months and when bakers replenish their stocks they will have to receive higher prices for their products to meet the rising production costs. The proposed two-cent increase would be on a one and one-quarter pound loaf of bread which sells for nine or 10 cents.

The association asked Leon Henderson, federal price control administrator, to investigate the rising cost of bread ingredients.

R. J. Ferguson, secretary of the bakers association, said flour has gone up 30 per cent; shortening, 100 per cent; sugar, 30 per cent; paper products, 40 per cent; butter and chocolate, 30 per cent, and caraway seed, 900 per cent.

Russians Call Raid Failure, Assert Troops Holding Positions on Front.

HITLER CLAIMS RETREAT

Says 92 Red Tanks Destroyed In Big Battle Near Kiev; Moscow Calm In Raid.

(By Associated Press)

German bombers left scores killed and wounded in Moscow today and reported that "vast flaming seas" engulfed the Soviet capital, while on the fighting front Adolf Hitler's high command declared Russian troops were suffering "extraordinarily sanguinary losses" everywhere.

It was Moscow's second successive night raid.

The Russians, while admitting casualties, fires and bomb-wrecked homes, declared the Moscow assault was a failure. They also insisted that Soviet troops were still fighting in the same zones as yesterday.

Hitler's headquarters pictured the Red armies as falling back along the entire front in the 32-day-old struggle, suffering terrific losses in attempts to relieve encircled units.

German press dispatches reported the destruction of 92 Russian tanks in a battle south of Kiev, the Ukraine capital, yesterday, and DNB, the official German news agency, asserted that Nazi and Finnish troops had knifed deep into Russian lines on the northern front, east of Lake Ladoga.

"In the Ukraine," the Nazi high command said, "German, Rumania, Hungarian and Slovak troops are continuing their pursuit untiringly"—in a drive toward Kiev.

"On other parts of the eastern front, enveloping and annihilation of small and big Soviet groups continue."

The German communique said that bombs of the heaviest caliber and showers of incendiaries inflicted "serious destruction" in

HALT ATTACK

Ecuador Reports Peruvians Driven Back at Border.

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador — (AP) — Official Ecuadorean reports said Peruvian troops started a general attack on a 12-mile front on the southern frontier of Ecuador today, but were repulsed and driven out of several of their own outposts.

The Ecuadorean reports said Ecuadorian troops, although greatly outnumbered, pursued the attackers to the other side of the Zarumilla river, and captured Peruvian posts at Aguas Verdes and Brancamoro.

The Peruvian foreign office charged that Ecuadorean troops fired on Peruvian outposts early today, killing one Peruvian sergeant, in a renewal of outbreaks which began July 5.

CHUNGKING — (UP) — Admiral Yang Hauang-Cheng, chief of the intelligence bureau of the Chinese war operations board, said today that a large Japanese fleet and 30 troop transports had moved southward following French refusal of Japanese demands for air and naval bases in southern Indo-China.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—A Reuters (British news agency) dispatch from Hanoi, French Indo-China, said today it had been confirmed officially that the Japanese ambassador to France has demanded the use of facilities in southern Indo-China.

No details of the Japanese demands are yet available, the dispatch said, but it is known that Sotomatsu Kato, Japanese envoy to Vichy, has been in contact with Vice Premier Admiral Jean Darlan.

Japan already holds air bases in northern Indo-China and has troops garrisoned at Hanoi, the capital, and Haiphong, chief northern port. Persistent reports have indicated that she would ask for further footholds at Saignon, chief city of the south, and perhaps Camranh bay, naval base on the southeast coast of Indo-China.

The British government took cognizance of the Indo-China crisis when Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told parliament today that "the government are aware of persistent reports to the effect that the Japanese government intend to take action to obtain naval and air bases in southern Indo-China."

In a written reply to a member's question Eden continued:

"These reports are the most significant since they coincide with a Japanese press campaign of innuendo against Great Britain in respect of both Indo-China and Thailand.

"I welcome this opportunity to state that the alleged designs of Great Britain in both these countries are entirely non-existent."

KNOX FORESEES MOVE IN ORIENT

Declares There's 'No Doubt' of Military Action After Recent Developments.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Secretary of Navy Frank Knox today said there was "no question" but that recent developments in the Far East, including the Japanese government's establishment of radio and cable censorship on information from that country, meant new military movements in the far east.

Knox told his press conference: "I look for movement out there—and very soon."

He declined, however, to discuss the possible direction of such a move, saying that "No one can tell at this point whether it will go north or south."

The navy department yesterday informed President Roosevelt that the Japanese had established censorship and at his press conference President Roosevelt said he considered it significant, but referred questioners to the state department when asked if he expected it to be the prelude to an aggressive action in the orient.

Sumner Welles, acting secretary of state, arranged to receive the Japanese ambassador today amid increasing signs that the United States was preparing new notice to Japan on the threat of military moves in the far east.

The navy secretary was asked whether the United States fleet was in position to do "whatever is necessary to carry out our policy in the far east."

Smiling, Knox, said "Yes," and declined to elaborate.

Axis Officials Detained Till U. S. Consuls Arrive.

LISBON — (AP) — The United States Naval Transport West Point docked in Lisbon harbor at 8:10 a. m. today but the expelled German and Italian diplomats aboard were informed they could not land until American consuls for whom they are being exchanged have crossed the Portuguese border.

Motorbusses were waiting at the quay to take the Germans on a tour to Sintra where a luncheon had been prepared by the German colony to welcome them "out of America." But the Germans and Italians were told they would not be allowed to leave the West Point until the American legation had informed the West Point's captain that all Americans had arrived safely in Portugal.

As the first diplomatic train bringing the Americans probably will not cross the border before 2 a. m. tomorrow, the Germans and Italians apparently were destined to spend another 24 hours aboard ship.

Nurses, Back Home, Tell of 12 Days on Sea After Sinking

NORFOLK, Va—(AP)—Their ship torpedoed some 400 miles off the coast of Greenland while en route to Great Britain, four American Red Cross nurses came home yesterday under the strong arm of the U. S. navy with a vivid story of 12 days in an open boat in the North Atlantic.

Picked up July 5 by an American destroyer, they were taken first to a naval hospital at Reykjavik, Iceland, for treatment of gangrene of the feet and exposure before coming here in a navy transport.

The four, who sailed June 5 from New Orleans aboard a 7,000-ton vessel were Marion Blissett of Detroit, Mich.; Victoria Pelc of Auburn, N. Y.; Rachel St. Pierre of Boston, and Lilian M. Pesnicak of Albany, N. Y.

Two others of the party were picked up and are now in a hospital at Londonderry, Ireland.

Their exposure to the open sea during the nearly two weeks in which they subsisted on hardtack and meatballs doled out by the captain of the vessel, brought on the gangrene.

Two torpedoes struck the vessel which had dropped behind a convoy June 24, sending it to the bottom within eight minutes. The submarine then surfaced and the crew offered to take the women aboard. The answer was "no."

"No one can imagine," they said, "our joy and relief" when the U. S. destroyer hove to in answer to their last signal rocket.

Foreigners Ordered To List Assets

TOKYO—(U.P.)—All foreigners in Japan were ordered today to list their personal assets, including clothing, with the finance ministry by July 31. After that date they must report each three months on their income and expenditures.

Agents of the finance ministry called on foreign news agency offices today, including those of the United Press, and demanded a complete list of assets within Japan. They also investigated any funds sent abroad by the agencies and the agencies' source of income.

(A United Press Shanghai reported that all Japanese steamship lines serving Shanghai ceased publication of their shipping schedules effective today.

The Domei news agency quoted well informed quarters as charging that the United States was deliberately discriminating against Japan by refusing Japanese ships transit through the Panama Canal so Japanese crews could not see the nature of "repair work" now in progress.

Domei quote its informants that the American state department had adopted a vague attitude in the matter and Japan could not find the basis for a formal protest.

See Jap Plan to Grab Dutch Indies

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Some far eastern experts expressed the view today that underlying Japan's reported new demands on Indo-China was a Tokyo determination to place Japanese forces in easy striking distance of the rich Dutch East Indies and Britain's strategic Singapore naval base.

These authorities, declining to be quoted by name, said the demands undoubtedly called for virtual Japanese domination of France's Far Eastern possession. Should Vichy fail to capitulate quickly, they added, the Japanese could be expected to open an immediate offensive against Indo-China.

(The predominant opinion among observers in Shanghai today was that Japan was rushing military preparations for action both in southeastern Asia and in the north.)

Before the 21-year-olders will be called for training they will receive and return their questionnaires and then will be classified by the county's three draft boards.

cedure," the general said. "That means further limitations."

The chie fof staff struck at proposals to rely on a volunteer system and payment of bonuses to soldiers.

"I am much disturbed over suggestions that we go back to Civil war procedure of bounties and volunteers," he emphasized. "I beg of you not to repeat that mistake. You have a law on the statute books. I submit it is dallying with facts not to follow it."

Gen. Marshall reiterated his declaration that the nation faces an emergency.

"I made the recommendation (to extend training) in my annual report because I thought the situation was so serious that it should be brought to the attention of the country," Gen. Marshall said.

He again denied that he had proposed creation of a second A. E. F. "That involves a great question of national policy which must be settled between the president and congress," the general declared.

Meanwhile, administration leaders in congress today decided to "turn on the heat" to speed enactment of legislation retaining selectees, national guardsmen and reserves in service, as opposition forces planned their course of action.

Senate Democratic Leader Barkley outlined a time-table which calls for senate passage of a measure by the end of next week. A bitter fight is expected from the non-interventionist bloc, however, which decided at a meeting last night to oppose in every way President Roosevelt's request for a declaration of a national emergency.

And it appeared unlikely, that congress would heed Gen. Marshall's request to pass the legislation by August 1. He warned the senate military affairs committee that he must begin calling draftees back from Hawaii Aug. 5 unless congress acts.

Despite action of the non-interventionists, sentiment veered sharply toward a declaration of national emergency, which would give the president power to keep the army intact. Even foes of the proposed extension told the senate military affairs committee that such a move would be the proper way to meet the issue.

"I do not know what the committee will do, but judging from the attitude of members they appear to favor a declaration of emergency," said Sen. Reynolds (D. N. C.), chairman of the senate military affairs committee.

Following the meeting of 50 opponents of the proposal, called by Sen. Wheeler (D. Mont.), leading non-interventionist, Sen. Taft (R. Ohio), said it was agreed to "oppose every way congressional declaration of a national emergency, at least on any information we have received up to date."

The roomers testified that Mrs. Rothlisberger plunged the knife into her husband during a scuffle late Monday night in the bedroom of the Rothlisberger home. The victim died a few minutes later. Mrs. Rothlisberger contended she was not close enough to her husband to have inflicted the wound.

Ballard and Oakley said the scuffle occurred after the Rothlisbergers and six roomers in their home had returned to the house following a visit to taverns in Willard.

Brass plant last week in protest over Sferro's dismissal. The men returned to work the following day, after giving officials of the local full authority to call a strike at their own discretion.

Company officials said today only that there had been no change in their stand as a result of their conference with the conciliator. Richard Neibur, union field representative, said the company had refused to sit in a joint conference with the union and the conciliator.

Although union officials have already been empowered by the union membership to call a strike, Niebur said tonight's meeting, to be held in the UE hall, above the Park theater, had been called to advise the members of the results of yesterday's conference and to determine the union's next step.

Neibur said today that the conciliator had told the union that in view of the company's refusal to meet the union, there was nothing further for him to do in the case.

GERMANS BLAST AT MOSCOW IN SECOND RAID

Nazis Assert City Engulfed In Flame; Russians Call Attack 'A Fizzle.'

last night's dusk-to-dawn attack on Moscow, and that fires set the night before were still raging out of control.

By contrast, the Russians officially declared that the raid was a fizzle, with most of the Luftwaffe beaten off and 10 per cent of them shot down.

Amid conflicting reports from Moscow and Berlin on the land fighting, the Germans declared that Nazi legions had scored important gains on the central front, storming key defenses of Polotsk in a violent two-day offensive with grenades and flamethrowers. Red army troops were reported wiped out by the tens of thousands as they fought to the death from shell-smashed bunkers.

Polotsk lies 140 miles northwest of the vital Smolensk sector.

Nazi dispatches said the encircled remnants of several Russian divisions were destroyed, with 4,000 Soviet corpses littering the battlefield, northeast of Zhitomir, 85 miles from Kiev, on July 21. Many thousands of prisoners were reported captured.

The Russians acknowledged German-Finnish penetrations on the northern front and a deepening Nazi thrust into the Ukraine, but declared fighting continued yesterday on the same shell-torn central front with the Nazi onslaught still checked.

First German reports described the second overnight raid on Moscow as turning mid-city areas into a sea of flames, with heavy hits around the Kremlin and Red Square and fires touched off in the government building district to the east.

The Russians said dozens were killed and wounded and some fires were started, but no military objectives were hit. They reported 15 of 150 raiders downed, compared with 22 of more than 200 shot out of the sky the night before, and declared only a few raiders got through the searchlight patterns and thundering barrages.

Moscow's four millions apparently took the raid calmly, filing to shelters or roof-tops fire-patrol posts as sirens wailed through the blackout of the capital coated with camouflage over its bright painted spires, its big new apartments and rows of barrack-like worker dwellings.

The Red army declared heavy fighting continued yesterday on the central front of Porkhov and Smolensk and in two new sectors —Petrozavodsk and Zhitomir. Petrozavodsk, 250 miles north of Leningrad, is on the vital rail line north to Murmansk, ice-free arctic port. Zhitomir, 50 miles closer to Kiev than Novograd Volynski, where fighting has been mentioned previously, is 85 miles from the Ukraine capital.

The Germans reported British bombers attacked again overnight, this time striking into southwestern Germany instead of at the usual objectives in the northwest.

The British said ovenight raiding by German planes was on a small scale, confined to eastern and northesatern coastal sections.

HONOR KIWANIS OFFICER DURING GALION MEETING

Guests Congratulate Trustee at Dinner Program In Talbott Hotel.

GALION—Galion Kiwanis club Tuesday honored its foremost member, Rev. Philip E. Auer, who was recently elected Kiwanis International trustee at the convention in Atlanta, Ga.

Many telegrams were received from other prominent International, district and state Kiwanians who were unable to be present.

There were more than 100 guests present for a dinner-program at Hotel Talbott. Kiwanians from towns in the fourth district of Ohio Kiwanis were present for the occasion, bringing visitors here from Marion, Mansfield, Fremont, Norwalk, Port Clinton, Crestline, Bellevue, Mt. Gilead, and other neighboring towns.

William Giedhill, president of the Galion club, presided for the evening. Invocation was given by Rev. R. R. Elliker. The program chairman was William Freeman, and George James acted as master of ceremonies.

H. L. Ricker of the local club who acted as historian, mentioned Rev. Auer's achievements in Kiwanis from the time he became president of the local club in 1928 to the time he was elected lieutenant governor of the 4th division of Ohio Kiwanis in 1933, governor of the Ohio district in 1938, to his chairmanship of the International Committee of the Support of Churches In Their Spiritual Aims in 1940. This latter committee was pioneered by Rev. Auer. His most recent honor, of course, being his election as Kiwanis International trustee.

Edmund F. Arras of Columbus, Kiwanis International past president, appeared on the program along with G. Truman Landbarg of Cincinnati, Ohio district governor; Frank Poling of Mansfield, past Ohio district governor; Pete Land of Akron, Ohio district secretary; Joseph Merrick of Columbus, lieutenant governor of the fifth division of the Ohio district.

Rev. Auer closed the program with his version of the "V" three dots and dash, in an inspiring short talk.

Orchestra music was provided during the dinner hour, and other music of the evening was group singing.

Among the many congratulatory messages sent to the club and Rev. Auer for the occasion was a telegram from Charles S. Donley of Pittsburgh, Pa., president of Kiwanis International.

The local committee that planned the reception for Rev. Auer was composed of C. L. Morkel, C. Craun, Dr. M. J. Matthias, William Freeman, and K. M. Petri.

After the Atlantic ocean has been made "safe," a way may be found to make our streets and highways safe.

Wheat is a big problem in Europe because there's so little of it, and also in America because there's so much of it.

Attention is directed to the fact that days are already becoming shorter—and, from a defense standpoint, fewer.

Machinery From South America

BRINGING machine tools from Argentina into the United States seems like carrying coals to Newcastle, as the neighbors "down below" have always been short of such commodities and have usually bought them from us. Now there are firms in the United States importing drill presses, shapers, punch presses, die filing machines and hand screw machines from Argentina and Brazil.

Orders to be filled later from the same sources include large turret lathes, planers, heavy duty drill presses and milling machines, built to conform with American machine practices and requirements.

The machine tool builders down there are said to have surplus production because of the closing of European markets, and are naturally glad to find a market in this country. They probably appreciate, too, the fact that they are thus helping in the big job of defense production for this hemisphere and its foreign friends. And there is probably no need to fear their competition now or for a long time to come. As our southern neighbors prosper and expand their infant industries they themselves will become better markets for our own goods.

Old Tracks Should Be Removed

THE SUBJECT of removing the remaining car tracks from Mansfield streets is again up for attention by the city administration.

It now appears that the value of steel in the old rails is sufficient to meet the cost of removing abandoned tracks and restoring the paving.

Each winter, for the past several years, these street car tracks on Park avenue west, South Main street and Bowman street, have constituted a needless traffic hazard and they are also dangerous at any time the streets are wet.

The matter of determining the financial responsibility of any firm proposing to remove the rails and repave the streets satisfactorily should present no serious difficulties. If possible, this work should be done during the present summer and early fall, so as to be completed before the arrival of winter weather.

Early Purchase of Coal Advised

REQUEST that people lay in their winter's supply of bituminous coal within the next few weeks—so as to relieve railroads of car shortages later in the year—is now presented as an aid to defense.

In other years it has been urged as a means of equalizing mine production, fear of winter shortage because of a threatened strike, lower summer prices, or some other quite plausible reason.

Persons who have storage space for estimated winter coal needs and who have set aside a fund for payment, customarily have delivery made in July or August, when dealers are less rushed and prices are ordinarily somewhat lower than in the fall and winter months.

The likelihood this year is that September and October will bring exceptionally heavy demands upon the railroads for transportation of defense materials and it will be wise for everybody who can do so to buy their coal as soon as possible—at least a substantial percentage of their probable winter requirements.

Pleasant Side of Training

MILITARY LIFE of men in training isn't all "beer and skittles" but neither is it all hardship. Here is an interesting report given by a young sergeant, normally a salesman, at home on a week's leave.

"Army life is a decided change from civilian life," he says, "but there is no reason why a man shouldn't like it. The food is excellent. There are all types of recreation available. The service clubs offer everything from billiards to music boxes. Dances are held every week or two. Work is equally divided and no favoritism shown unless a man complains—then he is apt to get more than his share. I like the life and I believe most of the boys like it, although perhaps they will not admit it.

"I notice," he adds, "that all the men have added to their self-assurance. The army is a maker of men. If you're a man when you join up, you'll be a better one when you come out."

'Voters' Who Do Not Vote

THE NEWS-LEADER of Staunton, Va., calls local citizens to task for their civic apathy. Statistics show that 15.85 per cent of all citizens of Staunton and Augusta county control public affairs for the remaining 84.15 per cent. Even when the inhabitants too young to vote are taken out, the number of voters is less than one-fourth the number who ought to vote.

"Isn't it time for our citizens to shake off such distressing lethargy?" the editor asks. "If democracy means anything, it should count most during these hectic, distressing times. No citizen has any right to enjoy the privileges of citizenship without assuming ever present responsibilities. The conditions constitute a positive challenge to every male and female in city and country twenty-one years of age and over."

Figures will vary, but similar "distressing lethargy" exists all over the country. There may be some small communities in which every eligible voter exercises his franchise on election day, but they are not numerous, and the amount of indifference seems to rise with the population.

The total popular vote has been growing in recent national campaigns, although it is still well below the total eligible vote. But even in such elections, voters often ignore local issues essential to good government and give their temporary attention only to national candidates. It is indeed a peril to democracy.

One philosophic bit contends: "Our supreme lessons in wisdom come from the mistakes we make—unless we keep on making the same ones"—and the common excuse, "Everybody makes mistakes," is not conducive to confidence.

A Philadelphia newspaper refers to Pennsylvania politics as "a shambles"—so there's normalcy in at least one quarter.

THE THINKER

Listen World!

We Need a 'Backlog'

MY HUSBAND and I have been having a debate," she writes, "and we've decided to use you as a reference. The subject is, 'should young people still be taught to do manual work in this mechanical age? I mean things like sewing and cooking for the girls; home carpentry and general tinkering for the boys. My husband believes they should; I don't. Somehow it seems foolish to have a girl spend hours making a simple wash dress when she could buy one for $1.95. As for the boys, what chance has a young man to use a hammer or saw in a rented apartment? What's your opinion, Elsie?"

MY OPINION? Let me ask you one first. Ever have a backlog, lady? Maybe you don't even know what a backlog is or means to country folk of a cold December night.

Climate cutting didoes outside. Rain guttering down the shake roof, lashing against the lean-to. Wind yowling like a lost coyote through the pines . . . snuffling at the crack in the door.

How long would you last if they all could break in? Not for long. You think of it. You think of it . . . remember those campers who froze to death last year . . . feel the goose pimples creeping along your spine. Then the glow of the backlog catches you, and you're warm and sure again.

Grand old institution, that backlog, come December. Nothing mysterious about it. Just a stout chunk of oak or other hard wood set far back in the fireplace behind the lighter trash and twigs. T'isn't spectacular. Other things make a far prettier fire. Pine cones, f'instance. All pitchy stuff shoots like a rocket, flames like a rainbow—purple and gold, scarlet and blue and green. Pine chips, tarry weeds, they're fun, too. Perfume the whole house. But for hours after the lighter stuff has flared and cooled the old backlog keeps glimmering along . . . slow, steady, comforting.

Often they burn for days. Getting up around five to do the chores, with the snow slithering across the panes and the frost smelling like sour ashes in the air, you certainly bless that backlog. Chances are, you can't even see the flame, it's hidden so deep in its core. But you can feel it bucking you up, giving you a fresh start . . . And many's the woman who has eased her heartache and found peace in its comfort . . . and many's the man it's helped through a spell of fear.

Backlogs. Just about the oldest thing we have in our modern homes . . . hangovers from our cave life days. Yet they're still going strong. Not really necessary, maybe. Electricity, gas—they'll heat you quicker . . . make less mess. But there's something about a backlog, burning slowly through the night . . . through the storm . . . lifting your heart on a bleak morning. It'll be a dreary old world, I'm thinking, if the backlogs ever give out!

How do I feel about hand chores in a mechanical age? That's how I feel, lady. They're backlogs for life and character. They give us something, do something to us, which all the mechanized gadgets can never supply.

Yes, I know—you can buy a wash dress or a window screen or a can of beans at any corner store. Get them cheaper and a lot quicker than you can ever make them yourself. BUT YOU CAN'T BUY THE PEACE AND PRIDE THAT COMES FROM MAKING THEM YOURSELF... AND YOU CAN'T BUY THE GLOW THAT GOES WITH MAKING THEM FOR SOMEONE YOU LOVE.

You can't buy the sense of security either . . . the heartening knowledge that, whatever happens, you have the makings to meet it. And believe me, that's the most cheering accident insurance you can carry in a world gone mad!

A backlog. A backlog of self-sufficiency and self-respect. It's a great thing to have, come December! And the youngster who hasn't had it built into his or her character has been cheated.

Timely Editorial

Elastic Loyalty.

The Communist party in a broadcast from Washington by Robert Minor, acting general secretary, urged American workmen to give their best efforts to defense production to defeat Germany. Minor warned labor to be "jealously on guard against the taint of defeatism and appeasement."

Such manifestations of the switchback in the party line following Russia's forced entry into the war would be funny if the subject were not so serious. Nobody knows how much American Communism sabotaged the best defense efforts of American workmen and spread the virus of defeatism nad appeasement prior to the night of June 21-22, 1941. But it seems established they did as well as they could.

That they now are all for national defense is therefore a good practical ground for satisfaction. But we do not think any Americans worthy of the name will need their urging to work hard for America. And as for being jealously on guard against defeatists and appeasers, we trust that vigilance will continue to include within its scope the "Comrades" whose loyalties are so readily adjustable to circumstances.—Detroit News.

Liberia Looms as U. S. Outpost, Has Strategic Value In Defense

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—For just about one century the African Republic of Liberia has been a pain in the neck to the United States government. But now, at long last, it may justify the headaches it has caused in Washington. It may be another Iceland.

Liberia, meaning a "free country," was founded even before the Civil war by American Negroes who sought to establish a free black republic and lead a movement "Back to Africa." The idea was encouraged by abolitionist leaders in New England, and the colony had an auspicious start.

However, American negroes transplanted to Africa later became slave-owners themselves, and established a lively trade selling their own brethren from the jungle to plantation owners.

This trade of black selling blacks got so bad that irate Henry L. Stimson, then secretary of state, practically forced the resignation of the president of Liberia. Stimson stamped out the slave trade and Liberia has been fairly clean since.

Liberia always has been under the protection of the United States. Its government operates partly on funds borrowed from the U. S. government, and its customs are watched by a U. S. collector. A friendly U. S. gunboat drops in at its ports from time to time, and U. S. Minister Lester Walton, a Harlem newspaper editor, carries great weight in the affairs of the country.

Now suddenly, with the hasty Nazi-supervised arming of French Dakar, Liberia is coming to have great importance. It is located south of Dakar in an area friendly to Great Britain and the United States and which could be used to protect the coast of South America.

For some time military strategists have driven home to the White House and state department the very great importance of West Africa in preserving the Monroe Doctrine. For if a hostile army gains control of West Africa, the hop across the south Atlantic to Brazil and Uruguay is relatively easy for modern bombing planes.

The Vichy government has now openly admitted the arming of Dakar against the United States, and Free Frenchmen escaping from North Africa have reported that about 3,500 Nazi technicians were busy in Dakar and other parts of French Northwest Africa instaling coast artillery and building air bases.

However, south of Dakar and near Liberia, de Gaulle Frenchmen are in control. Thus this part of equatorial Africa is being studied carefully as a base from which U. S. forces might operate to block Nazi operations against the Western Hemisphere.

Note—Since the fall of Ethiopia, Liberia is the only free country on the entire continent of Africa, and it has remained so only because of the United States.

Nazi Lowdown on U. S.

HERE is some interesting light on the current splurge of reports that Hitler will stage a new "peace offer" offensive.

At a recent dinner party in Havana, the German Charge' d'Affairs, Herr Tauchnitz, was asked by a Cuban how long he thought the war would last. This was the Nazi's reply:

"About six months—by which time both the Pope and the president of the United States will have made an intervention for peace and the action of the president will be very important."

"But do you really think," the Cuban asked in surprise, "that the president will act in this manner? He has not talked that way."

"If you will recall," replied the German charge', "that I said the president of the United States. I did not mention any name, either that of Roosevelt or Colonel Lindbergh."

Note—Last spring Lindbergh in several speeches made mysterious references to a "new leadership" in the U. S.

AFL Ruckus.

HOT inside warfare is raging in the AFL over President Bill Green's appointment of that seven-man committee to study defense labor conditions and "promote union cooperation" with the government.

It was hushed up, but at a caucus last week the powerful building trade unions, representing the biggest voting bloc in the AFL, flatly repudiated the "cooperation" committee, then followed this up by bluntly telling Green that the committee didn't exist as far as the building trade unions were concerned.

The caucus was called by Harry Bates, potent chief of the bricklayers, who charged that instead of being motivated by the high, patriotic aims proclaimed by Green, the committee actually was set up for the secret purpose of sniping at President Roosevelt and OPM Associate Director Sidney Hillman.

Others also charged that the real instigators of the committee were Matthew Woll, AFL vice president, and Robert Watt, AFL international representative, chairman and executive secretary of the committee. Ambitious and eager to be in the limelight, both Woll and Watt have been miffed at not landing top defense jobs.

After listening to the fiery blast of Bricklayer Bates, the caucus decided unanimously (1) that Hillman and his labor advisory committee were doing an efficient job; (2) that no good purpose could be served by the committee, and (3) that building tradesmen representation in the defense setup (outside that in Hillman's organization) should come from their own department in the AFL, headed by John Coyne.

Following the caucus, a delegation led by Bates called on Green personally and notified him of their decision.

"We want it clearly understood, Bill," Bates declared frankly, "that your committee is not to represent the building trades in any manner, shape or form, or interfere with the representation we now have in the OPM and other agencies. Also, we want it clearly understood that your committee will keep out of the building trades field in making any studies it may undertake. We've come here to get such assurances from you."

Since the building trade unions are autonomous, Green had no alternative but to agree.

Note—Big mystery to insiders is what Coyne is doing on the committee since his associates washed their hands of it. It is thought that Green may be endeavoring to keep him on the committee to avoid disharmony talk that would be sure to arise if he resigned.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK — People ask me, "What is this Miguelito Valdes like?"

That was a stumper. I didn't know who Miguelito Valdes was. Then someone wrote in from Ohio and wanted to know if he was in "Panama Hattie."

No, he isn't in "Panama Hattie," but when I heard the name again I thought I'd better find out about him. I'm supposed to know a little of what goes on in this town. It seemed for a moment a new hero had zoomed up and everybody but this department knew all about him.

WE FOUND him with that old Spaniard and caricaturist, Xavier Cugat. Have you got a pencil? You can take him right off our notes and you'll know all about him:

Miguelito Valdes is 73 inches tall and weighs 197. . . . He has long, straight, jet black hair. . . . He looks, and sings, like a suddenly tamed and happy ex-savage.

Mike—let's call him Mike for short—is a "tabu" singer. . . . His specialty and stock in trade are Afro-Cuban melodies, with the half wild chant of the veldt and the rhythmic tonal gyrations of the West Indies.

He was born in Havana, son of a Mexican mother and a Spanish-Cuban father. . . . He got his physique on the Havana docks, indulging in occasional pier brawls and competing in almost daily "concurso" contests. . . . This is a pastime where contestants try to sing each other down. . . . In some of our more elegant night club precincts in New York, we call this coon-shouting.

But on the Havana docks they shouted in impromptu coinages and improvised verses. . . . He shouted to the tunes of small drums, or to maracas, claves or guitars. . . . Sometimes to the tune of all at once.

THEN Mike got the urge to become a prizefighter. He read an account of how much coin Joe Louis gets for one of his matches, and he started out to emulate him. To make a long story short, Mike did not attain the title. . . . But he did become a corking good guitarist, and a singer of Latin tunes.

Now you see and hear him with Cugat. . . . If you are in New York, you find him at the Waldorf. . . . If you are elsewhere, you can find him on the radio with Cugat or in the phonograph record shops. . . .

Some of his best known numbers are "Bruce Manigua," "Macumije," "Babalu," and "Negra Leonor."

Mike has only been in the United States a year. . . . His English is not good, but neither is it bad. . . . He is fascinated by New York's styles in tailoring, and his wardrobe grows alarmingly.

In fact, he likes it here so well he thinks he'll stay.

Carmen Lombardo, brother of Guy Lombardo, the orchestra leader, has altered his style of singing. . . . He has honed off the edges of those harsh R's and taken the quiver out of his voice. . . . Bravo!

A Farmer's Diary

Blackberry Time

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

I WENT for blackberries up along the highest ridge south of where we live. The morning chores were done, yet the sun was not high. Dew was heavy on the meadow pasture. The breeze that blew across the standing wheat shocks and the newly cut late clover brought to my nostrils the fragrance of summer. I heard the plaintive call of a worried mother quail; a ring neck pheasant flew across the road in front.

Near the top of the ridge an open field slopes down to a narrow valley. Along the borders of this field tall canes grow, laden with cones of blackberries, both green and ripe. The highway is near, but only a few cars pass each day, so that the shiny black fruit remains practically free from dust.

It was a pleasant place to be. The sun's rays came, almost level, to where I stood, gleaming fitfully through the waving branches of eastern trees. The valleys were hazy and green, far below. I took the pail from the back seat and began to pick from the bushes nearest the road. The fruit was startingly cool, crisp and firm. Dew had washed the surface during the night and strengthened the cells with needed moisture. Each handful dropped onto the bottom of the pail voiced a protest against the metal.

The strong, rough, fruiting canes arched above my head. My arms and wrists grew weary and ached from reaching up. Yet there they hung—the best berries of the patch—surrounded by keen-edged thorns that defied my very presence.

Things worth while, I mused, with shredded shirt and bleeding hands, must be just a little farther than your grasp and won by pain and struggle.

The tempting odor of the delectable juicy fruit grew on my consciousness. I tasted one. It was cool and sweet and good—so I tried another. For a season it seemed that almost as many came by accident into my mouth as into the pail I held. Berries, I reasoned, are more enjoyable eaten out of hand than taken from a can in winter time. Besides, I thought, as I felt the increasing heat of the sun and sweat poured from my face, winter is a long way off.

But my feasting came to a sudden, disappointing, sputtering stop. I mouthed some berries that bore a hidden cluster of small red ants! The joy of eating fresh berries wet with dew vanished in one stinging acrid bite. Soon after that, my thumb and finger snugly contacted a husky hard-shelled bug that gave off protesting odors even worse than the anty flavor I had just experienced.

Yet every summer I can quite forget the wounds of flesh and appetite and return again on a July morning to some wild woodsy blackberry patch for enjoyment and profit.

MANSFIELDERS TAKING MORE TRAVEL TOURS

That's What Bus Official Says as Records Reveal Sharp Increase.

Nearly twice as many Mansfielders are traveling this year than last, H. W. Palm, terminal manager of the Union Bus station, 58 North Diamond street said today.

Comparative figures on ticket sales from Mansfield for bus travel in the first week of July this year was approximately 3,500 as against only 2,000 yast year, Palm said.

While these figures represent travel over a holiday week-end they are nevertheless indicative of the trend which has consistently increased approximately 25 percent monthly this year against totals of the same period in 1940, he stated.

While Palm said that complete records were not available concerning destination points, passengers this year are traveling farther from home than in previous years.

"We sell more long distance tickets than we did last year," he said. "Strangely enough, passengers still seem to regard Horace Greely's advice as good, for more of them travel west through Mansfield than return from the west."

While the increased traffic is being handled easily, Palm said, maintenance for bus travel is becoming more difficult because of defense demands upon manufacturers.

Replacement parts in some instances are nearly 50 per cent behind on delivery, he said. This is true even of orders which were placed before the present emergency, he stated.

The three bus lines, Greyhound, Farrlick Stages and the Galion-Mansfield service bring 41 buses in and out of Mansfield daily, Palm said.

A corresponding increase in city passenger traffic was noted in the Chamber of Commerce's report for the month of June. The total number of passengers riding on city lines in June this year was 156,730 as compared to 141,641 in 1940.

This marked a percentage increase over last year of 9 83 per cent according to the C. of C. report.

June city traffic, however, declined from the May figure of 176,398 for a loss of 11 15 per cent in the number of bus passengers.

C. of C. reports indicate this to be a recurring seasonal variation probably a result of pleasant summer weather and an increased use of cars by owners who do not drive during the winter.

The number of bus passengers who have used city bus service this year as against last, however, shows an increase of 2 97 per cent for the first six months of the year.

Sheriff Puzzled As Army Fails to Act on 4 A.W.O.L.

Sheriff Frank Robinson has had four "guests" on his hands for the past 10 days and he admits he "doesn't know what to do about them."

The foursome are privates from Camp Shelby, Miss., who were rounded up in Mansfield and Crestline and placed in the Richland county jail on charges of being absent without leave.

Two letters have been sent by the sheriff to Camp Shelby officials asking what disposition is to be made of the prisoners but no reply has been received.

One of the quartet even sent a telegram to camp saying the four would start hitch-hiking back if that was okeh by the officials.

But that didn't get an answer.

Meanwhile the boys visit daily with their families and spend no small amount of time wondering "what will happen next."

CHAPTER XV

Not until the day she received a note, brought to her by her room steward, did she know that all was not well.

Thinking it was from Jimmy, she opened it eagerly. It bore the signature of George Malone.

"Will you join me for a cocktail?"

That was all. A simple note. Doris noted that it could not possibly be construed as incriminating; he was too clever for that. But she was stricken with sudden fear.

All that day Doris told herself that she would not meet George Malone for cocktails. But at 5:30 she was waiting in the bar. The worst that could happen, she thought miserably, was that Jimmy would see her. Even if he did, there was no reason she could not be having a cocktail with George Malone.

He joined her smiling. "I felt sure you'd be here," he said. "What will you have?"

"Nothing," Doris snapped. "What do you want to see me about?"

"So I'm not good enough for you to drink with?"

She did not reply.

He ordered a martini, and when the steward had gone, he said, "I'm going to let you in on a little secret Just between us."

"What are you talking about?" Doris demanded.

"Don't you know who I really am?" Malone asked, leaning closer.

Doris looked directly into the face of George Malone. It was a hard face, lined by experience, steel-like in expression.

"Don't you recognize me?" he repeated.

A vague horror began to take shape in her mind. There was some terrible secret he was about to confess but—what—why?

"I am flattered that you don't recognize me. Because if you did others would too, and that would be most unfortunate for me. You see I am wanted by the police

Doris caught her breath at the sheer nerve of this man who sat in the crowded bar and openly made such an admission.

"Plastic surgery," he went on, "is most useful in situations like mine."

"Wanted by the police?" Doris repeated. "But what makes you think I won't tell?"

"Because if you did it would be most embarrassing for you."

The steward returned with the one martini and Malone lifted his glass.

"To the future," he said, his tone full of meaning.

Doris felt ill.

"Naturally George Malone is not my real name. Would you like to know what it is?"

"Why should I?" Doris said, but her voice trembled.

He leaned closer "It might interest you to know," he said in a low voice, "that my name is Charles Newton."

* * *

Her father! The room spun around in strange circles. She tried to speak, to make some protest, but words would not come. The noise and clatter of the bar seemed to come from a far off place. Charles Newton! Her father! The father that had deserted his wife and baby almost twenty years ago. Her father! This cheap crook who was wanted by the police!

"No!" she cried. "I don't believe it."

"Oh, I can prove it easily enough," he insisted. "I have the marriage certificate—your mother's and mine. We were married in 1918, August 6th, in Kansas City by a Lutheran minister." He produced it from his pocket. There was also a letter written to him by her mother two years after they were married. It was addressed to Santos, Brazil.

"I don't blame you for being surprised," he went on smoothly. "Nevertheless, I am your father. Up until a year ago I've been in South America. I tried to locate you, without success. That is until I ran into you on the other ship."

"I hate you!" Doris cried from between clenched teeth. "You broke my mother's heart. She hated you too."

He laughed. "How unfortunate! But that doesn't change the situation any, does it?"

"It certainly does! I'm going to turn you over to the police, even if you are my father. I won't protect you now that I know the truth. You don't deserve anything from me."

"Not so fast." He laid a hand on her arm but Doris shook it off. "If you turn me in, how will that effect Jimmy Allen? Think of the publicity when we dock 'Playboy engaged to gangster's daughter. Jimmy Allen victim of fraud.' Do you think he'd ever believe you again if he knew that I was your father? Do you think he'd ever marry you? Of course not! But the papers would make a swell story out of it."

Doris shuddered.

He drained his glass and moved closer. "You can be very useful to me," he said, appraising the trim figure before him. "You're beautiful and you're unsophisticated. People trust you. Now if you follow my plan we'll be set for life You won't ever have to go back to Klane's basement and you can marry Jimmy Allen too."

Doris sat very still and said nothing. She must protest Jimmy. She must stall for time.

"What do you want me to do?" she asked coldly.

He glanced at her with approval. "You are cleverer than I thought. What I want you to do is quite simple. I want you to marry Jimmy Allen. That's easy enough, isn't it? The boy's a fool about you. Once you're married, the rest will be a cinch. You can persuade him to invest his money in several enterprises which I am going to promote. Of course, I would also expect you to advance me money from time to time. We wouldn't want him to find out after you were married, would we?"

Doris controlled her fury with an effort. "Is that all?"

"That's all. He won't know what's going on. You'll have plenty. I'll have plenty. Everyone will be satisfied."

"And if I don't do it?"

"Then I will be forced to disclose my identity, which will be most unpleasant for all three of us, and it certainly would be sensational publicity."

"I'll have to think it over," Doris told him.

With a pounding heart she sought privacy on the deck. She inhaled deeply of the fresh sea air. She felt contaminated by even the presence of this man. Her father! Oh, no! How could he be! What evil fate had brought him back into her life now when she was about to claim the first happiness she had ever known?

She could not marry Jimmy now. But she must make Malone think she would. This would keep him away from Jimmy until they docked. How could she go on pretending to Jimmy, discussing plans for their marriage, when she knew that she must eventually refuse him? What would her excuse be when that terrible moment came? What would he think of her?

"It doesn't matter," Doris told herself drearily, "so long as he never suspects the truth"

Doris had no doubt that Malone was her father. The proof he had was evidence that could not be disproved. True, she had never seen a picture of her father. Her mother would scarcely ever even speak of him. But if she had known what he looked like, plastic surgery could alter him beyond the point of recognition. She was trapped, hopelessly trapped. As soon as her romance with Jimmy was ended she would go to the police. But as long as there was a possibility of Jimmy's being involved, she must remain silent.

She marveled at his nerve. Traveling on a forged passport, hiding from the police, leisurely strolling the decks of a first-class ship, openly admitting his identity to his daughter in a crowded bar. Of course he knew that the cards were all in his hands. Doris was powerless. She was powerless because she loved Jimmy Allen more than herself. And George Malone knew it. Her father! He would always be George Malone to her. She could not ever think of him by any other name.

She braced herself for the coming struggle. She must not give herself away to Jimmy. He must believe that all was well, until they were in New York and she could think of some means of getting him safely away from Malone. Neither must she let her father know that she was not going through with the marriage. Neither must know the truth until it was too late. Then she would go to the police. She felt no duty towards this man who had deserted her mother, a man who had never been a father to her, a man whose lack of principle was a disgrace to society.

Jimmy came out of the lounge, "Hello, sweetheart! What have you been doing?" He slipped an arm about her waist.

She could not meet his eyes. "I have a headache," she told him. "I thought maybe the fresh air might help."

He was all solicitude. His tenderness wrung her heart. She longed to throw herself into his arms and pour out the whole terrible story. But she dared not. She could see George Malone watching her from the window in the bar.

Her courage failed her. "Jimmy," she cried weakly, "I don't feel well. I think I'd better go to my cabin and go to bed."

He was alarmed. "Darling, what's the matter?"

"It's just a headache," she protested. "I'll be all right."

She felt so weak that her legs could scarcely support her. A nervous chill swept over her and she shivered in the warm tropical night.

Jimmy opened her cabin door for her. "I'm going to send the doctor, Doris, whether you like it or not." He held her cold hands and she saw that his eyes were worried. Poor Jimmy! If he only knew!

Celebrate Fourth Anniversary

Duchess of Windsor Has Hands of Much Character

If you stop to think about it, you don't recall much about the Duchess of Windsor's bracelets. Her hands are almost never photographed in close-ups, and seldom without gloves. They are hands of character, rather than beauty, but their grooming is perfect. For the informal life of the Islands, the Duchess wears a soft rose polish over the moons, with white tips. Her bethrothal ring is an extremely wide band set with diamond brilliants in bias rows, one after the other, clear around the finger. It looks like a bias strip of some ribbed fabric. Next to the band she wears her famous wedding ring of gold contributed by Welsh miners — a recognition of the fact that she became the wife of the one-time Prince of Wales. The ring is a plain, eight-sided circlet, symbolizing the title of Edward VIII.

The Duchess's pet bracelet is a fine diamond chain dangling many little jeweled crosses. On her right arm she sometimes wears a bangle of woven gold with a jeweled clasp, and in Palm Beach her right wrist was wrapped twice with bulky, twisted gold ropes. She sometimes wears a bracelet outside her long gloves. The Duchess's elbow-length doeskin gloves, which she possesses in yellow, white, and blue, will surely start a summer trend for covering up the forearm and cutting down on sunburn. Although the Duchess plays golf almost daily and carries only a small parasol at cooking-hot reviews under the tropical sun, her skin is said to be as fair as her smile and as smooth and even as her disposition.

DELANO AUXILIARY.

Delano Auxiliary members held their regular business meeting Tuesday evening at the lodge hall. Mrs. Bessie Ricks, president, conducted the business meeting. If you like to have your cookies soften up when stored in a jar, keep a slice of bread, an orange or apple stored along with the cookies.

W. C. T. U. MEETING.

A covered-dish dinner will be served for members of the Iota Sigma chapter, W. C. T. U., Thursday evening at South park pavilion. The meal will be served at 6 p. m. followed by a program and music.

RINSE DISHES

Even the handsomest dinner china will seem unappetizing if it is streaky, and streaky it will be if it is not properly washed. Unevenness of the gloss is due to failure to rinse the dishes after washing them in the soapy dishwater.

Some women skip the rinsing because it is apt to be a splattering business which wets the floor and walls around the sink unless it is done with great care. Women who have a combination sink and washtub can get around this very nicely, however, by using the tub as the rinser.

Remove the cover or drain board from the tub, and then place the china in the tub straight from its soapy wash in the dishpan. When all the china has been washed turn the hot water faucet on in the tub and let it flow until all the dishes are completely covered. Pull out the plug, let the water run off, and the dishes are ready for a quick wipe with a clean towel. The towel, of course, should definitely be good and clean.

Leftover wallpaper can be used effectively for covering waste baskets, utility boxes and accessory containers for dresser drawers. The paper also is convenient for lining drawers.

There are clothes hangers and rods to fit every size and shape of closet. Inquire about them at your department store if you have inadequate and irregular closet space.

Nuptials Read For Bucyrus Couple July 18

BUCYRUS—Home on furlough, James Robinson, now of Camp Shelby, took as his bride Miss Ruth Harriet Kesler of Tiffin, in a ceremony in First Baptist church at Tiffin Friday, July 18.

The ceremony was witnessed by Mr. and Mrs. John Lambright of Tiffin, and the couple was feted at a dinner given by the Lambrights and Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Trotter following the ceremony. They left soon after for a short wedding trip.

The bride is a graduate of Fostoria High school and has been employed as cashier at the J. C. Penney company. Mr. Robinson was employed by the Colonial Finance company before entering military training.

Organize Club at Birthday Party

When 22 women met Tuesday evening at Middle park to honor Mrs. Bertha Coleman on her birthday anniversary they organized a club which will be devoted to welfare work. The group will meet twice a month. Those appointed to plan for the organization include Mrs. Coleman, Mrs. Regina Gresser, Mrs. Mabel Johns, Mrs. Nettie Mentzer and Mrs. Elmira Caugherty.

Games and contests were enjoyed last evening after the steak fry. Tables were decorated with garden flowers and a birthday cake was presented the honoree, who also received many lovely gifts.

Sheer Fabrics Are Cooler

Above-the-table interest is the thing to look for in the afternoon frock you'll wear to bridge parties this summer. Here's a silk crepe with a full bodice, low hip-line, gently flaring skirt. For above the table charm it has a ruffling white lingerie collar. Shown in gray with white and pink print, it comes in many colors.

Rice, Carrots and Peas
Tossed Green Salad
Custard Ice Cream
Wafers Ice Tea

Rice, Carrots and Peas

1 cup uncooked rice
1 lb. green peas
1 bunch young carrots

Custard Ice Cream

1 teaspoon plain gelatin
2 tablespoons milk
1 quart milk
2 egg whites
2 egg yolks
1 cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

Mary looked steadily at me for the fraction of a second, and the expression in her eyes reflected what the old novelists used to call "mingled emotions." Uneasiness was there, ruefulness, a hint of defiance, but more than anything else the whimsicality which infuses Mary's thoughts, words and actions.

"All right," she said, "but just wait one sec, will you? I'll be right back."

She was back almost immediately, presenting a most ludicrous appearance, her dress disordered, her hair rumpled, her face looking as if dusty fingers had been rubbed over it.

In her hands she bore a bizarre collection of objects—a toy whip, a ball of twine and an ashtray full of cigarette ashes. These she placed with much show of ceremony upon the bedside table. Then she knelt by the bed in an exaggerated attitude of contrition.

Could Find No Sackcloth.

"I couldn't find any sackcloth," she said, "but the ashes are there in plenty, and I'll put them on my head when you get through flagellating me. Here's the rope to tie me up to the bedstead"—she indicated the ball of flimsy string with the gravest of faces—"here's the knout," as she pointed to the toy whip, "and here's the finishing touch." She then pulled out a salt shaker from her pocket and placed it with the other objects upon the table.

"Why the salt, Mary?" I asked her when I could speak, for her foolery, as always, had compelled my laughter.

"Don't you know your Uncle Tom's Cabin?" she queried reproachfully. "Don't you remember they rubbed salt into his wounds after every flogging?"

Mary Pleads Guilty.

"I guess I'd better stop trying to be as funny as I can," she said. "But you know what I've been doing, I fancy. You always did, even before I began it. I've been trying to put off the wiggling I feel in my bones you're going to give me, and which, I acknowledge right now, I richly deserve. But I'm ready for the stake now, so light your fire."

"Mary darling," I said softly, "I agree with your own dictum. You do need a thrashing, but I'll try to administer it with mercy. Tell me first: Are we likely to be disturbed, and will you have to go back to the party?"

"A decided no to both questions," she said. "Taking the last one first, the party is over. Little Stevie faded first, as I predicted he would do—and of course after Hamlet left, there was no more incentive for anybody to stay, especially when they were told that you wouldn't be back for them to gush over.

Mary To Stay All Night.

"And there won't be anybody over here. Nancy Carew announced her intention of going to bed, and went to her room. My papa-in-law and his queen and princess are occupying the royal suite in the hotel always reserved for the owner. He and Olga discussed coming over to see how you were, but Olga wisely overruled him and delegated the task of looking after you to me. They both told me to tell you that you were to call them at any moment during the night, if you should need them."

"I shan't need them," I said decisively.

"I didn't think you would," she retorted. "But they suggested one thing which solved a problem for me."

"What was that?" I asked, sensing that she expected the question.

"Why, they told me they thought I ought to stay over here with you for the rest of the night, so I brought my traps along with me."

"But Noel!" I protested.

How Do You Treat Your Daughter?

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Not long ago I was invited to be a luncheon guest by the president and board of managers of a rather unusual type of home for girls who are unwed mothers.

This institution doesn't take girls who are not willing to stay for at least six months, during which time they are taught scientific baby care. In addition, they are taught a trade, if they have none, to enable them to support themselves and the child. If they belong to the white collar class, they're given a certain number of hours work per week in the institution to keep themselves in practice.

In this Home, there are all sort and conditions of girls—well-educated girls from excellent homes who have had every opportunity life could offer, and girls born into homes steeped in drunkenness, disease and inescapable poverty, who have never had sufficient education to enable them to maintain themselves.

In the discussion which followed, one woman, a doctor, said that in her opinion, girls were in such institutions because they lacked proof of real affection in their homes. In the majority of cases fathers in both high and low bracket., ever in pursuit of the elusive dollar, were seldom demonstrative; they never tried to have any real companionship with their daughters. The same state of apparent indifference was noticeable in mothers up and down the social ladder. In well-to-do homes, women were endlessly taken up with their own concerns—jobs, perhaps, since jobs were fashionable; club work, community service, bridge, and beauty parlors.

In poor homes, where the father depended on unskilled labor, he found relaxation with his cronies over beer mugs and had little time left for family sentiment. Wives of such men had so little margin left after they had done the housework, they were too numb from work and fatigue to notice that their daughters needed an outward show of affection.

The woman doctor went on to say that girls were often morbid and felt themselves unappreciated or even actively disliked by their families, and that these readily fell victims to the first man who showed an interest in them, real or pretended.

To many of us this was a new angle, in considering the case of the unwed mother. Many modern young people of both sexes, it seemed to me, avoided any show of affection on the part of their parents. In fact, I've been given the impression that nothing bored them quite so much as parents who insisted on petting them and would not realize that their children had grown up.

Whether girls demand active coddling on the part of their parents or not, please let me say that they should have sympathetic understanding. Your daughter is your daughter, and as human as you were at her age. No matter how humble, her home should be more than a place to sleep and hang up her hat.

Parents should try to know their daughters' friends. It's tragic when girls are forced to meet men on street corners because parents don't want to be bothered with daughters' company. What is even worse, fathers sometimes attempt to invoke an authority frequently disregarded and forbid their daughters to have dates and bring them home.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

THE DEFENSIVE HOLD-UP

IT IS NOT often that the defensive side gets a chance to use the hold-up play to good effect. Usually it is the declarer who employs it, because he can survey all of his resources and is better able to figure out the factors which make the play advisable. Upon occasion, however, a keen-eyed defender can spot a chance to use it with devastating results, perhaps destroying communication between the declarer's own hand and the dummy.

	♠ 5 ♥ K 5 3 ♦ A K 6 5 3 ♣ A 7 5 3
♠ J 10 6 ♥ Q 8 6 4 ♦ 9 7 ♣ K 10 8 2	N. W. E. S.	♠ Q 9 4 ♥ 7 2 ♦ Q 10 8 2 ♣ Q 9 6 4
	♠ A K 8 7 3 2 ♥ A J 10 9 ♦ J 4 ♣ J

(Dealer: North. Both sides vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
1 ♦	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♣	Pass	3 ♥	Pass
3 NT	Pass	5 ♠	Pass

Bidding was about like that at most tables of a duplicate, the main variation being that South rebid his spades before showing the hearts. It was a risky slam, with only seven trumps, and two pairs were set, one by his own bad play and one by good defense.

The inefficient declarer won the diamond 9 lead with the A, led to the spade A, led the spade 2 for a ruff by the heart 3, took in the heart K and led the heart 5 for a finesse which lost to the Q. West returned the diamond 7 to the K. To get into his own hand then, South laid down the club A and 3, ruffing with the heart J. If the trumps had been evenly divided between the defenders, the heart A then would have dropped them, and the spades could have been run, for a successful contract. But they weren't. West still had the 8, so South could take only one more trick with the spade K, then had to lose a ruffed spade to West, plus two clubs, putting him down three.

The more efficient declarer won the opener with the diamond A, cashed the spade A, then led the spade 2 to be ruffed by the heart K. He then led the heart 3 to the J, which lost to the Q. West returned the diamond 7 to the A, and the heart 5 to the A, plus the heart 9, settled West's trumps, so that the spades were run for contract.

Another declarer, playing exactly the same way, was pleased when the heart J finesse held. He returned t o dummy with the club A and finessed the heart 10, which West won, having held up before. He returned a diamond to the K, but South had to use a ruff to get to his hand. So he got the same result as the weak declarer, but not from his own fault.

Tomorrow's Problem.

	♠ Q J 8 ♥ A 8 6 4 3 ♦ A 9 ♣ 7 5 2
♠ K 9 2 ♥ 9 7 5 2 ♦ K 10 8 6 5 ♣ 8	N. W. E. S.	♠ 10 6 ♥ Q 10 ♦ J 7 2 ♣ Q 10 9 6 4 3
	♠ A 7 5 4 3 ♥ K J ♦ Q 4 3 ♣ A K J

(Dealer: West. East-West vulnerable.)

If West leads the club 8, how would you as South play for a badly overbid 6-No Trumps?

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, July 24.

The augury for this day is for a memorable and progressive state of affairs, with probable change, innovations and surprising turns in the wheel of fortune contributing to its pleasure and success. Radical or novel ideas, plans or projects may thrive under the supervision or collaboration of those in power or of group support or recognition. Daring and dramatic moves may prove productive, despite some trivial annoyances or some more regrettable domestic concern. Elders may cause this anxiety. Be circumspect in all personal relations.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured a year of progress and probably thrilling experiences, in connection with public activities or in collaboration with high; authorities, superiors or influential personages. This may involve radical change of plans and objectives, new associates and environs, but all profitably and constructively. In the private life there may be anxiety or grief and all purely intimate or personal relations should be handled with discretion.

A child born on this day should be progressive, original, creative and daring in its adventures, and should have surprising twists to its fortunes. It may suffer in its domestic or affectional life.

TURN STOCKINGS

To make the washing of stockings very simple, strip them from the feet wrong-side out. Wash the wrong side first, then turn right side out and cleanse that side. By doing the washing this way, it is necessary to turn the stocking only once while it is wet, and weakest. It cuts down the chances of snagging by the sharp points of the fingernails.

BROADWAY

Gossip Through the Ages.

(A composite of some of the best items about the biggest celebrities the world has ever known, as they might read if every town from Babylon to Boise, Idaho, had had a Broadway columnist, a typewriter, and a time capsule.)

Adam and Eve are knitting tiny garments . . . Wonder who'll referee that Cain and Abel scrap at Eden's Garden next Friday night? . . . The D.A.'s office will investigate the testimony of Pharoah's daughter. They don't like that bullrush angle . . Betting commissioners are laying odds that Jonah will break all records. He's been inside the whale for ten days now and is still going strong . . . The glamor girl, Delilah, has started a new hair-do. It's called bobbing . . . Nero is now publicising the fiddle industry . . . King Solomon, the jeweler's delight, bought 17 new wedding rings Monday.

Mark Anthony and Caesar are as far apart as the poles over that Nile damsel . . . Charlemagne rates a gold star for that oration in which he said: "This is a war to end war!" . . .

Christopher Columbus and Isabella insist it's strictly business. Huh? . . .

Pocahontas is learning fast for a filly who hasn't been places . . . Real Estate tip: Insiders rumor that you can buy land bead cheap up in the Manhattan sector . . . Some jockey, that Paul Revere!

George Washington and a belle named Martha are sniffing orange blossoms.

William Tell has taken on the apple industry as a publicity account. That lad will stage any kind of a stunt to put an apple on the front pages . . . Queen Elizabeth likes that new game, Switching Partners . . . John Hancock is coining a pretty penny with his endorsements.

Bill Shakespeare's tavern pals are worried about him. After all those hits, Bill is talking of writing a murder mystery, complete with ghosts and a fistful of violent killings. He's going to call it Hamlet, and the wisies are warning him it's not commercial.

That Lafayette lad is winning the Fourth Estate, as well as the local belles. Allowed the press to interview him for three hours last night at Fraunce's Tavern . . . A "character" named Nostradamus is being investigated by the city's bunco squad . . . Odds are three-to-one that Socrates doesn't beat the rap, with no takers. Merlin is trying to hush up the Arthur-Guinivere-Launcelot affair, but it's all over town. You might as well ask them to stop talking about what happened at Ciro's!

Why don't they stop glorifying gangsters? Those silly ballads about Robin Hood are just a bad example to children, who are beginning to regard the larcenist as a romantic figure. Ben Johnson is refusing to let his next play be produced unless the girl's part is enacted by a girl—of all things.

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—The tall, good-natured actor was handed the script, and he shied. He didn't care about doing that kind of part in that kind of picture. He didn't want any part of the propaganda stuff he feared it would be.

But his boss had a deal on, and the actor was tied up in it. Reluctantly, he went to work. And pretty soon, though his misgivings continued, the actor found himself warming up, actually liking it.

It's just as well—because if he had held firm, Gary Cooper would have missed out on the best part, and the best picture of his career—"Sergeant York."

You never can tell—and why should you, if actors can't?—what picture is going to do things for an actor. As likely as not, it's the very movie the player fights against, or squawks about the loudest.

There was the time M-G-M was disciplining a rebel named Gable, and sent him down the river to Columbia on loan out. It was there he met a not-so-sure miss named Colbert, who didn't think too much of the script herself. It was there the two, guided by Frank Capra, worked together on the movie that happened one night to win both of them Oscars—and new careers which still flourish seven years later.

Spencer Tracy, who had been out of work and needed a new chance, got his in "San Francisco." It started him on the Oscar-road, though in advance the actor had had his doubts that he could handle the part.

Not long ago Paulette Goddard was nursing a beef. They were casting her as the heavy in "Hold Back the Dawn" when what she wanted to play was the sweet ingenue. Squawking did her no good—and the picture is finished now, with Goddard as the heavy and (by all advance reports) doing the job of her life.

Turning back the calendar, we can find Ann Harding cold on a picture called "Holiday." She thought it wasn't right for her, but the box-office made it right as rain, to coin a cliche. She never had another quite as good.

STUDY EFFECTS OF DECREASE IN RELIEF LOAD

Welfare Director Calls Meet at Columbus; Ohio Average Set at 48,000.

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—The effects of a tremendous decrease in Ohio's WPA rolls—estimated at 35,500 during this month—on the state relief problem will be studied next week by relief heads of metropolitan centers at a two-day conference with relief experts in the state welfare department.

State Welfare Director Charles L. Sherwood said the meeting in Columbus next Tuesday and Wednesday would follow a series of district meetings in rural and semi-rural areas where an attempt was made to gauge future relief trends.

Sherwood said housing problems and transient labor movements would also be discussed.

Those expected to attend the conference include: Walter M. Costello, Dayton; William H. Lehman, Canton; Clarence A. Benedict, Toledo; J. M. Zang, Akron; Frank Jones, Cleveland; Miss Belle Grove, Cleveland; I. L. Feuer, Youngstown.

Sherwood said the state would be represented at the conference by himself and William H. Hartsough, relief consultant for the department.

WPA rolls in Ohio have been ordered reduced to an average of 48,000 persons during the new federal fiscal year, beginning July 1.

State welfare department figures showed that on June 11 WPA rolls in the state totaled 80,638 and a month later, on July 9, had been pared to 50,933.

Sherwood said the first effects of the WPA reduction may not be felt until this fall. In the rural areas many of those who have lost WPA aid may find seasonal employment in farm work, he said.

However, Sherwood said the picture may be different in the metropolitan areas where elderly persons will not be able to find jobs in industry as easily as those of the same age who live in rural areas.

The state relief load has fallen off to 47,980, the lowest figure since the beginning of direct relief; Sherwood has predicted that the so-called "irreducible minimum" of the state's relief load will be between 45,000 and 55,000, "providing WPA maintained its employment and the accelerated industrial picture continued."

Vehicle Plunges Into 1,000 Persons Massed at Outdoor Movie.

LYONS, Ind. — (INS) — Twenty-four children and two adults were under treatment today for injuries suffered when an automobile was driven into a crowd of almost 1,000 persons watching an open air movie in the Lyons business district last night.

Held on open charges as the alleged driver of the car was Pete Mengedoht, 24, of Lyons. BUDD PROTESTS WORKERS SHIFT

Transportation Chief Lashes Proposal as Threat To Railroads.

CHICAGO—(U.P.)—Defense Transportation Chief Ralph Budd protested today against a proposal to shift 100,000 railroad mechanical workers into shipbuilding and aircraft industries.

Budd expressed "sternest opposition" to the plan, which was announced at Washington by Associate Director Sidney Hillman of the Office of Production Management.

Eli Oliver, chief OPM labor adviser, met with railroad officials and labor leaders at Chicago yesterday to explain the proposal. The plan contemplated voluntary transfer of approximately one-fourth of the skilled railway maintenance employes to critical defense industries.

"The railroads' part in defense is as vital as any other part," Budd commented.

"I never heard of a suggestion more threatening to the transportation structure during the defense emergency. Railroads not only cannot sacrifice manpower at this time but they need every available mechanical service if they are to escape being crippled."

Labor representatives and other railroad officials withheld comment.

A theater usher has to be able to do a little of everything, ushers at the Madison theater found the other day when they took turns being nursemaid to a baby. Two patrons left the child with the ushers telling them to watch closely and see that the baby wasn't kidnaped. The ushers took turns and waited patiently for five hours until the parents came out of the show. In the meantime, all the ushers received gratis varied types of information on the care and raising of the young from passers-by. One insisted that the baby should be moved out of a draft while another didn't like the way the bed clothes were arranged.

A 21-year-old Richland county youth who failed to register July 1 for military service reported to Board 3 today to register and to explain that he "needed more time to think this army thing over." He told Board Clerk Charles Kirkwood that he read a book recently that helped him to change his mind about it and decided it would be best to report to the board. Kirkwood agreed with him and added that he should have registered first and then he would have plenty of time to "think it over." Kirkwood said there would be no penalty since the tardy registrant reported voluntarily.

SISTER BURNED TO DEATH IN BLAZE AT HOME

'I Like To See the Flames' Says Child Apprehended at Canal Winchester.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—A boy of nine who said "I like to see the flames" was held in a detention home today after admitting, Coroner E. E. Smith said, that he set three fires—the last one burning to death his four-year-old half-sister.

With matches he obtained from his home in nearby Canal Winchester, Donald Hedrick fired a church parsonage, a paint store and his own home yesterday afternoon, the coroner said the boy told him.

Mary Lucile Hedrick, sleeping on the second floor of the home, was trapped.

Fire Chief C. H. Zeller of Canal Winchester said he suspected incendiarism after the first two fires were reported. Donald himself reported the first, rushing into the office of the Canal Winchester Times and urging Mrs. H. D. Hartman, an employe, to sound the village fire siren atop the building in which the paper is located.

That fire was in the parsonage of the David's Reformed church. Three hours later fire that caused extensive damage was discovered in the Brown Bros. Paint company store.

Still later, Mrs. Hartman said, the boy hurried into her office shrieking "Fire!" It's my hous this time."

The boy related, according to the coroner, that he set the parsonage fire by touching a match to a pile of papers; that he reached through a broken window to ignite a curtain at the paint store, and that the fire at home was set in a pile of rags in the attic.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Hendrick. The father did not know of the fires or the death of Mary Lucile until he returned home last night from a construction job on which he is employed in Columbus.

Mrs. Hedrick insisted that Donald could not have set the fire at his home. She said he was downstairs with her and the other children when the flames broke out.

Urges 168-Hour Week to Speed Army Equipment

CEDAR POINT —(AP)— Congressman Stephen M. Young of Cleveland today advocated a 168-hour week to bring the army's mechanized units and equipment up to equality with the navy's.

In a prepared address to the postmasters convention here, the Ohio Democratic congressman-at-large who served on the naval affairs committee of the house, said:

"Our security and way of peace is directly tied up in this European war. There can be no security for America until someone, somewhere, stops Adolf Hitler. We ought to be on a 24-hour, seven-day week basis instead of fiddling around with eight-hour shifts and quibbling about overtime."

Young told reporters that the navy's air arm was stronger than Germany's, Italy's and Japan's combined, but that our great weakness is the army's air arm and mechanized forces.

In a nationwide radio broadcast last night Young called for an increase in army privates' pay from $21 to $45 a month before the selective service training period is extended for the duration of the emergency.

First Softball Game Under Lights Booked Tonight

Sport Podge by Rex Hess

Joe Donnelly is still president of the Ohio State baseball league, but Umpires Mort Watkins and Ralph Bulmon, who worked last night's game at the Fairground between Mansfield and Tiffin, are on their way out.

That was the upshot of a stormy league session last night at Fremont when Lima and Findlay went after Donnelly's scalp, but failed to muster any more votes.

The count was 4 to 2 for retaining Donnelly.

It was generally agreed, however, that with two good umpires in place of Bulmon and Watkins, the league would have a really good arbiting staff.

And this pair of thumb wavers, who have been the center of many a strenuous argument over the circuit, were waved out of action "as soon as they can be replaced."

Even while the Fremont meeting was in session, an umpire from Detroit called up wanting a job, and Donnelly promised he would check on the man's qualifications.

Bulmon and Watkins didn't get into any serious difficulty last night, although Watkins kept the pitchers, batters and fans guessing on how he'd call balls and strikes, and had more than one protest.

Both were philosophical about the league uproar over their work. Asked if they'd be here Sunday they retorted:

"We may be if we don't get canned first."

With the departure of Bulmon and Watkins the league will have only Bill Ward and Don Karns left from the men in blue who started the season.

It has long seemed to me that the league moguls made a mistake when they decided last spring to try to develop umpires with the hope of selling them to a higher circuit, and then picking them from a league operated school for arbiters.

The loop was bound to get inexperienced officials who weren't too competent to handle the games. The moguls forgot that they had ball players to sell, and that the players couldn't develop if they had to guess against both the pitchers and umpires up at the plate.

The moguls picked with Joe
a bone,
But Donnelly still squats on the throne.

Mud Hens Break Streak

Okleson's Wildness Spots Lead To Tiffin.

THE 10-game home victory string of the Mansfield Braves was snapped last night by the Tiffin Mud Hens 10 to 6, but the process, while painful, had one bright and cheerful feature for the Mansfield fans. It brought back Lefty Bob Kuzava to the Tribe's twirling tee.

* * *

Young Rudy Okleson, making one of his infrequent starts on the hill, was wild and the Hens took advantage of his lack of control to score six runs in the first two frames on three hits.

When the visitors came back with two more markers in the sixth, Okleson was given a rest and Kusava, out of action for three weeks with a fractured jaw from a hard line drive, mounted the hillock and proceeded to tame the unruly Chicks.

Tiffin got to Bob for one run in the seventh and another in the eighth, but he set four of them down on strikes, issued no passes,

Braves At Home.
Friday—Lima
Sunday—Fremont (two games)

and appeared ready to help the Braves in their drive for the second half Ohio State league pennant.

Okleson walked Kenny King, midget leadoff man of the Hens, and after Vic Sander, back from the Toledo club, rolled out, Chuck Gerlach singled, scoring King. Gerlach stole second and continued on to third when Mutryn threw the ball into center field. Boone walked, and Taylor drove in two runs with a double to the scoreboard.

In the second inning Ryan and King walked, and then strolled home on Gerlach's mighty homer over the right-center field fence.

The Braves got three runs in the third on singles by Bobby TeStruth, Dick Morse and Tim Mangan and a double by Mutryn, Mangan scoring the third run on a wild pitch by Hurler Don Bayliss

Back came the Hens with two in the sixth when Weigle led off with a single, and Ryan was safe when Okleson bobbled his sacrifice bunt. Weigle scored on a long single by Bayliss. After King popped to Okleson, Sander walked, and that was all for Okleson. Gerlach forced Sander at second. Ryan scoring, and Dragovich fanned.

A double by Campau, a passed ball, and a single by Weigle tallied one run for the Hens in the seventh, and a single by Gerlach and a double by Dragovich added another in the eighth.

The Braves rallied for three runs in the eighth With two down, Salem doubled to left. Reinka fanned but reached first on a passed ball, Clowson doubled, driving in two runs, and Kuzava got his first hit as a Brave, a twister through second, scoring Clowson.

Bobby Ankrum returned to the lineup at short last night for two innings, but his ankle, injured a week ago, slowed him down, and the Braves played with a patched lineup for the rest of the game, Tim Mangan going to third and Dick Morse to short.

Mangan surprised the fans by fielding four chances without an error, and he was playing heads-up ball at the hot corner, getting Bayliss in a run-down between second and third after taking a bounder from King's bat.

The Braves do not play at home again until Friday night when they meet the Lima Pandas. This will be pots and pans night, and also ladies night. Anyone bringing an aluminum pot or pan for national defense use will be admitted to the game for a dime, while the women will be admitted for a dime anyhow, but are asked to join in the contribution of pots and pans.

RACE AT COLUMBUS

SHELBY — Carleton Boulware, Shelby cyclist who won the Ohio State track bicycle races in Urichsville, O., last Sunday, and Paul Swank of this city, who placed fourth in the state races, will compete in the races Sunday at Columbus to determine Ohio's entries in the national meet later this summer at Los Angeles, Cal.

LEFTY GOMEZ AND JOE DI MAGGIO

Recognize these two? On the baseball field they are Lefty Gomez, Yankee pitcher, left, and Joe DiMaggio, Yankee outfielder. The two were snapped on a one-day excursion to Bear mountain, New York, during an off-day. Gomez is a camera fan, as you can see.

SPORTS GOSSIP

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK — (The Special News Service) — National Open Champ Craig Wood goes back today to the old home town, Lake Placid N. Y., to team up with his brother, Scott, in an exhibition golf match. . . . They say Craig has cleaned up about five grand since the doings last month at Ft. Worth. . . . From this distance it looks like Turkey Thompson over Bob Pastor tonight at Los Angeles and Tony Zale to teach Ossie Harris a lesson at Chicago. . . . Aluminum collectors calling at Ebbets Field Monday were referred to the umpires' dressing room by Frankie Frisch. . . . New York fight managers are warring among themselves over Anton Christoforidis, whose contract with Lew Burston expires next month and probably will not be renewed.

THE BAD HUMOR MAN.

Southern association sports scribes are blasting Ray Blades, New Orleans manager, for acting up when they go to the dressing room to get the lineups before the game. One Atlanta scribe was tossed out on his ear. . . . Judge Landis, who can't see a thing without his specs, found himself in a picklement at the American association all-star game dinner. There he was with a plate full of fried chicken, et cet, and unable to feed himself because he had left his glasses in his room. The judge borrowed a pair from Burt Shotten, Columbus manager, and pitched in . . . Mike Jacobs couldn't get a $10,000 offer for the Joe Louis-Buddy Baer fight films, but they have made $100 000. Conn-Louis pictures will gross around $300,000.

ODDITORIUM.

By a strange quirk of circumstances, Jake Atz, sr., and Jake Atz, jr., both manage ball clubs called the "Twins." Jake, jr., is at Texarkana in the Cotton States loop and his pop is at Winston-Salem in the Piedmont. . . . P. S.: Both clubs are in seventh place.

Ferguson Auditors To Meet Mansfield Stars

Speedball Merchant with No-Hit Record Displays His Wares

THE famous Ferguson State Auditors of Columbus and the even more famous Dizzy Kirkendall will do their softball stuff under the lights at the Fairground tonight with a Mansfield all-star aggregation offering the opposition.

The Auditors, who defeated the Mansfield Sons of Herman at Columbus two years ago in a close game to win the state championship, and then went to the finals of the national tournament, will find several of their former Sons of Herman opponents in the lineup of the all-stars tonight.

But with big Diz Kirkendall shoving that apple across the platter in a streak of greased lightning, the Auditors are supremely confident of taking home the bacon.

Big Diz has over 75 no-hit games to his credit, and 14 of these were of the perfect variety with not a man reaching first base. He is ranked among the best softball hurlers in the nation.

This season the Auditors have won 22 games and lost four, meeting the best in Ohio and surrounding states, and they expect to improve that record at the expense of the Mansfield all-stars.

* * *

Starting lineup for the Auditors was announced today by Manager John Nolan as: Boling c, Brown lf, Hayes cf, Belcher 3b, Strausbaugh rf, Hickle 1b, Phillips r, Sunker 2b, Remalee ss, and Kirkendall p.

Against this array of stars Manager Joe Lesch of the Mansfield club has the following squad to choose from: Bob Plank, of Ashland and Aid Geiger, Westinghouse and Moose, pitchers; Bob Boyd, Yuncker Sports, Harry Ross, Westinghouse, Bud Woerth and Ken Mapes, Safety Cab, and Joe Kunz, Moose, infielders; Tommy Moxley and Gerald Miner, Westinghouse, Willard Lockhart, Yuncker Sports, Bob Parr, N. & W. Coal, Norm Lerner, B'Nai Brith, and Judy, Safety Cab, outfielders; and Joe Smollen, Safety Cab, Linn Carr, Ashland, and George Bosko, Westinghouse, catchers.

Last Sunday Geiger hurled the Mansfield Moose to a double victory at Canton in the Moose Traveling league, turning in a one-hitter in the opener, and halting a Canton rally in the nightcap as a relief hurler.

Bob Plank, former Ashland high school and Ashland college star athlete, was signed yesterday to bolster the all-star hurling staff, along with his battery mate, Linn Carr.

Tonight's game is scheduled for 8:30 o'clock.

Drastic Lineup Change Breaks Infield Combine

Oscar Grimes Replaces Mack In Famed Second Base Duo

NEW YORK—(AP)—Manager Roger Peckinpaugh of the skidding Indians today made his most drastic lineup change of the season, benching Ray Mack to break up the highly-publicized second-base combination of Mack and Lou Boudreau.

With the Tribe eight games behind New York as a result of yesterday's 4 to 3 setback, Peckinpaugh is seeking frantically to instill some batting punch into his fading club.

* * *

Mack is batting only .234 and has made just three hits in the last five games. Oscar Grimes, who is replacing him, is moving at a .285 clip.

Moving of Grimes to second means Hal Trosky's return to first base.

The shift is the second in a week, Larry Rosenthal having gone to center field in place of Roy Weatherly after the Redskins lost two straight to the Yanks in Cleveland.

Al Smith and Marius Russo were the pitching nominees today as the clubs headed into the semi-final game of their series.

The Indians were able to collect only six hits off Atley Donald, while New York meanwhile picked up seven safe blows off the delivery of Bob Feller to hand the ace fireballer his fifth defeat against 19 victories.

Joe McCarthy's men swept into a three-run lead before Cleveland scored. Joe Gordon's homer produced one tally in the second inning and two walks, Joe DiMaggio's single and Charley Keller's double added two more in the third.

* * *

Cleveland came back in the fourth with a pair of scores as Jeff Heath was hit by a pitched ball, Soup Campbell singled and Grimes doubled.

Johnny Sturm scored what proved to be the winning run in the fourth as he scampered home of DiMaggio's pop double after walking to start the inning.

Campbell's second circuit smash of the season produced Cleveland's final score in the eighth.

The Brooklyn Dodgers carried a 4-0 lead into the ninth inning and then lost a 5-4 decision to the Cincinnati Reds in a big rally centered around Chuck Aleno's pinch-triple with the bases loaded. Walters, who had held the Dodgers to eight hits, drove in the deciding run with a fly to center.

It was the fifth defeat in six contests for the skidding Dodgers, and when the St. Louis Cardinals downed the New York Giants, 7-6, the National league lead reverted to a tie between Brooklyn and St. Louis.

* * *

The Cards crowded six runs into one rollicking inning, the fourth, to beat the Giants. The defeat dropped the Giants out of third place and let in Cincinnati.

Pittsburgh beat the Phillies, 4-3, in a tilt in which both starting pitchers lasted only one inning and the Chicago Cubs crushed the Boston Braves, 13-2, with a 16-hit bombardment.

The Boston Red Sox licked the Chicago White Sox, 6-2, with Heber (Dick) Newsome outpitching John Rigney for his 11th victory, and the Philadelphia Athletics easily whipped the St. Louis Browns, 4-1, with Jack Knott pitching five-hit ball.

The Washington Senators halted the Detroit Tigers, 5-4, on the steady eight-hit hurling of Sid Hudson.

Rally Takes Close Game

Westinghouse, Yunckers Take League Victories.

Independent league ash-wielders crossed bats last night in two tilts. The Barnes club 10-3 and Westinghouse came from behind to take the Safety Cabs 5-2.

Yunckers moved out to a seven run lead picked up in the first and fourth innings and were never in danger as every batsman but one connected for a bingle.

Channel and Henrich sparked the Westinghouse win at bat as the victors tied the score in the last of the seventh and finally broke up the game with three runs in the last of the eighth. Smollen and Bolin did the heavy stickwork for the Safety Cabs.

* * *

In another scheduled tilt B'nai B'rith won on a forfeit from the Smoke Shop.

M'Neill Shines In Turf Test

Riggs Has Tough Time Getting By Rookie.

SEABRIGHT, N. J. —(AP)— The tennis experts were building themselves up today as pretty smart fellows.

These are the gents, you may recall, who were skeptical on two counts when the 54th annual Sea Bright tournament started. They had their doubts that National Champion Don McNeill should be ignored completely merely because he hadn't been able to win any clay court tournament. They also were not inclined to wax over-enthusiastic about Frankie Parker in spite of his impressive record in the same league.

* * *

The experts looked good both ways off yesterday's matches, for McNeill turned in a fine exhibition in his first turf test of the season, and Parker came close to flunking his.

While blond Donald was brushing aside Bob Kerdasha of South Carolina with the loss of only four games, Parker had to call on all his court craft to get by Ed Amark of San Francisco, a comparative "rookie," 7-5, 3-6, 6-2.

McNeill, who goes up against southpaw Seymour Greenberg of Chicago today, was elated over his performance. "It feels good to get back on that stuff," he said with a smile of confidence. "Now I can begin to control my shots."

First Softball Game Under Lights Booked Tonight

Sport Podge by REX HESS

Joe Donnelly is still president of the Ohio State baseball league, but Umpires Mort Watkins and Ralph Bulmon, who worked last night's game at the Fairground between Mansfield and Tiffin, are on their way out.

That was the upshot of a stormy league session last night at Fremont when Lima and Findlay went after Donnelly's scalp, but failed to muster any more votes.

The count was 4 to 2 for retaining Donnelly.

It was generally agreed, however, that with two good umpires in place of Bulmon and Watkins, the league would have a really good arbiting staff.

And this pair of thumb wavers, who have been the center of many a strenuous argument over the circuit, were waved out of action "as soon as they can be replaced."

Even while the Fremont meeting was in session, an umpire from Detroit called up wanting a job, and Donnelly promised he would check on the man's qualifications.

Bulmon and Watkins didn't get into any serious difficulty last night, although Watkins kept the pitchers, batters and fans guessing on how he'd call balls and strikes, and had more than one protest.

Both were philosophical about the league uproar over their work. Asked if they'd be here Sunday they retorted:

"We may be if we don't get canned first."

With the departure of Bulmon and Watkins the league will have only Bill Ward and Don Karns left from the men in blue who started the season.

It has long seemed to me that the league moguls made a mistake when they decided last spring to try to develop umpires with the hope of selling them to a higher circuit, and then picking them from a league operated school for arbiters.

The loop was bound to get inexperienced officials who weren't too competent to handle the games. The moguls forgot that they had ball players to sell, and that the players couldn't develop if they had to guess against both the pitchers and umpires up at the plate.

* * *

The moguls picked with Joe a bone,
But Donnelly still squats on the throne.

SALEM—(AP)—Raymond Overturf, former Geneva high school coach, will tutor Salem high school's football eleven this fall. He was named yesterday to succeed Carl Schroeder, who resigned.

Mud Hens Break Streak

Okleson's Wildness Spots Lead To Tiffin.

THE 10-game home victory string of the Mansfield Braves was snapped last night by the Tiffin Mud Hens 10 to 6, but the process, while painful, had one bright and cheerful feature for the Mansfield fans. It brought back Lefty Bob Kuzava to the Tribe's twirling tee.

* * *

Young Rudy Okleson, making one of his infrequent starts on the hill, was wild and the Hens took advantage of his lack of control to score six runs in the first two frames on three hits.

When the visitors came back with two more markers in the sixth, Okleson was given a rest and Kusava, out of action for three weeks with a fractured jaw from a hard line drive, mounted the hillock and proceeded to tame the unruly Chicks.

Tiffin got to Bob for one run in the seventh and another in the eighth, but he set four of them down on strikes, issued no passes, and appeared ready to help the Braves in their drive for the second half Ohio State league pennant.

Okleson walked Kenny King, midget leadoff man of the Hens, and after Vic Sander, back from the Toledo club, rolled out, Chuck Gerlach singled, scoring King. Gerlach stole second and continued on to third when Mutryn threw the ball into center field. Boone walked, and Taylor drove in two runs with a double to the scoreboard.

In the second inning Ryan and King walked, and then strolled home on Gerlach's mighty homer over the right-center field fence.

The Braves got three runs in the third on singles by Bobby TeStruth, Dick Morse and Tim Mangan and a double by Mutryn, Mangan scoring the third run on a wild pitch by Hurler Don Bayliss.

Back came the Hens with two in the sixth when Weigle led off with a single, and Ryan was safe when Okleson bobbled his sacrifice bunt. Weigle scored on a long single by Bayliss. After King popped to Okleson, Sander walked, and that was all for Okleson. Gerlach forced Sander at second. Ryan scoring, and Dragovich fanned.

A double by Campau, a passed ball, and a single by Weigle tallied one run for the Hens in the seventh, and a single by Gerlach and a double by Dragovich added another in the eighth.

The Braves rallied for three runs in the eighth. With two down, Salem doubled to left. Reinka fanned but reached first on a passed ball, Clowson doubled, driving in two runs, and Kuzava got his first hit as a Brave, a twister through second, scoring Clowson.

Bobby Ankrum returned to the lineup at short last night for two innings, but his ankle, injured a week ago, slowed him down, and the Braves played with a patched lineup for the rest of the game, Tim Mangan going to third and Dick Morse to short.

Mangan surprised the fans by fielding four chances without an error, and he was playing heads-up ball at the hot corner, getting Bayliss in a run-down between second and third after taking a bounder from King's bat.

The Braves do not play at home again until Friday night when they meet the Lima Pandas. This will be pots and pans night, and also ladies night. Anyone bringing an aluminum pot or pan for national defense use will be admitted to the game for a dime, while the women will be admitted for a dime anyhow, but are asked to join in the contribution of pots and pans.

Heroes Become Just People

LEFTY GOMEZ AND JOE DI MAGGIO

Recognize these two? On the baseball field they are Lefty Gomez, Yankee pitcher, left, and Joe DiMaggio, Yankee outfielder. The two were snapped on a one-day excursion to Bear mountain, New York, during an off-day. Gomez is a camera fan, as you can see.

SPORTS GOSSIP

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK — (The Special News Service) — National Open Champ Craig Wood goes back today to the old home town, Lake Placid, N. Y., to team up with his brother, Scott, in an exhibition golf match. . . . They say Craig has cleaned up about five grand since the doings last month at Ft. Worth. . . . From this distance it looks like Turkey Thompson over Bob Pastor tonight at Los Angeles and Tony Zale to teach Ossie Harris a lesson at Chicago. . . . Aluminum collectors calling at Ebbets Field Monday were referred to the umpires' dressing room by Frankie Frisch. . . . New York fight managers are warring among themselves over Anton Christoforidis, whose contract with Lew Burston expires next month and probably will not be renewed.

THE BAD HUMOR MAN.

Southern association sports scribes are blasting Ray Blades, New Orleans manager, for acting up when they go to the dressing room to get the lineups before the game. One Atlanta scribe was tossed out on his ear. . . . Judge Landis, who can't see a thing without his specs, found himself in a picklement at the American association all-star game dinner. There he was with a plate full of fried chicken, et cet, and unable to feed himself because he had left his glasses in his room. The judge borrowed a pair from Burt Shotten, Columbus manager, and pitched in. . . . Mike Jacobs couldn't get a $10,000 offer for the Joe Louis-Buddy Baer fight films, but they have made $100,000. Conn-Louis pictures will gross around $300,000.

ODDITORIUM.

By a strange quirk of circumstances, Jake Atz, sr., and Jake Atz, jr., both manage ball clubs called the "Twins." Jake, jr., is at Texarkana in the Cotton States loop and his pop is at Winston-Salem in the Piedmont. . . . P. S.: Both clubs are in seventh place.

Long Bar Lead Strengthened

Boost Point Margin To Four In Loop Play.

Long Bar golfers strengthened their hold on first place in the News-Journal A league at Possum Run last evening with a four to one victory over Barnes & Schmid, who dropped four points behind the pace, tied with Sloan's Drugs for second place.

Sloan's lost a 2 to 3 decision to Greystone Nite Club, while Richland Printing scored a 4 to 1 win over Yuncker Sports, and Cairn's Hardware edged Andregg Billiards 3 to 2.

* * *

Frank Cipris and Joe Mayer were the only par shooters in the league, each scoring 36. Turning in cards of 37 were Nick Linster, Vin Tipul, Pete Linster, Al Kushin and Paul Jesson.

Ferguson Auditors To Meet Mansfield Stars

Speedball Merchant with No-Hit Record Displays His Wares

THE famous Ferguson State Auditors of Columbus and the even more famous Dizzy Kirkendall will do their softball stuff under the lights at the Fairground tonight with a Mansfield all-star aggregation offering the opposition.

The Auditors, who defeated the Mansfield Sons of Herman at Columbus two years ago in a close game to win the state championship,, and then went to the finals of the national tournament, will find several of their former Sons of Herman opponents in the lineup of the all-stars tonight.

But with big Diz Kirkendall shoving that apple across the platter in a streak of greased lightning, the Auditors are supremely confident of taking home the bacon.

Big Diz has over 75 no-hit games to his credit, and 14 of these were of the perfect variety with not a man reaching first base. He is ranked among the best softball hurlers in the nation.

This season the Auditors have won 22 games and lost four, meeting the best in Ohio and surrounding states, and they expect to improve that record at the expense of the Mansfield all-stars.

* * *

Starting lineup for the Auditors was announced today by Manager John Nolan as: Boling c, Brown lf, Hayes cf, Belcher 3b, Strausbaugh rf, Hickle 1b, Phillips r, Sunker 2b, Remalee ss, and Kirkendall p.

Against this array of stars Manager Joe Lesch of the Mansfield club has the following squad to choose from: Bob Plank, of Ashland and Aid Geiger, Westinghouse and Moose, pitchers; Bob Boyd, Yuncker Sports, Harry Ross, Westinghouse, Bud Woerth and Ken Mapes, Safety Cab, and Joe Kunz, Moose, infielders; Tommy Moxley and Gerald Miner, Westinghouse, Willard Lockhart, Yuncker Sports, Bob Parr, N. & W. Coal, Norm Lerner, B'Nai Brith, and Judy, Safety Cab, outfielders; and Joe Smollen, Safety Cab, Linn Carr, Ashland, and George Bosko, Westinghouse, catchers.

Last Sunday Geiger hurled the Mansfield Moose to a double victory at Canton in the Moose Traveling league, turning in a one-hitter in the opener, and halting a Canton rally in the nightcap as a relief hurler.

Bob Plank, former Ashland high school and Ashland college star athlete, was signed yesterday to bolster the all-star hurling staff, along with his battery mate, Linn Carr.

* * *

Tonight's game is scheduled for 8:30 o'clock.

Drastic Lineup Change Breaks Infield Combine

Oscar Grimes Replaces Mack In Famed Second Base Duo

NEW YORK—(AP)—Manager Roger Peckinpaugh of the skidding Indians today made his most drastic lineup change of the season, benching Ray Mack to break up the highly-publicized second-base combination of Mack and Lou Boudreau.

With the Tribe eight games behind New York as a result of yesterday's 4 to 3 setback, Peckinpaugh is seeking frantically to instill some batting punch into his fading club.

* * *

Mack is batting only .234 and has made just three hits in the last five games. Oscar Grimes, who is replacing him, is moving at a .283 clip.

Moving of Grimes to second means Hal Trosky's return to first base.

The shift is the second in a week, Larry Rosenthal having gone to center field in place of Roy Weatherly after the Redskins lost two straight to the Yanks in Cleveland.

Al Smith and Marius Russo were the pitching nominees today as the clubs headed into the semi-final game of their series.

The Indians were able to collect only six hits off Atley Donald, while New York meanwhile picked up seven safe blows off the delivery of Bob Feller to hand the ace fireballer his fifth defeat against 19 victories.

Joe McCarthy's men swept into a three-run lead before Cleveland scored. Joe Gordon's homer produced one tally in the second inning and two walks, Joe DiMaggio's single and Charley Keller's double added two more in the third.

* * *

Cleveland came back in the fourth with a pair of scores as Jeff Heath was hit by a pitched ball, Soup Campbell singled and Grimes doubled.

Johnny Sturm scored what proved to be the winning run in the fourth as he scampered home of DiMaggio's pop double after walking to start the inning.

Campbell's second circuit smash of the season produced Cleveland's final score in the eighth.

The Brooklyn Dodgers carried a 4-0 lead into the ninth inning and then lost a 5-4 decision to the Cincinnati Reds in a big rally centered around Chuck Aleno's pinch-triple with the bases loaded. Walters, who had held the Dodgers to eight hits, drove in the deciding run with a fly to center.

It was the fifth defeat in six contests for the skidding Dodgers, and when the St. Louis Cardinals downed the New York Giants, 7-6, the National league lead reverted to a tie between Brooklyn and St. Louis.

* * *

The Cards crowded six runs into one rollicking inning, the fourth, to beat the Giants. The defeat dropped the Giants out of third place and let in Cincinnati.

Pittsburgh beat the Phillies, 4-3, in a tilt in which both starting pitchers lasted only one inning and the Chicago Cubs crushed the Boston Braves, 13-2, with a 16-hit bombardment.

The Boston Red Sox licked the Chicago White Sox, 6-2, with Heber (Dick) Newsome outpitching John Rigney for his 11th victory, and the Philadelphia Athletics easily whipped the St. Louis Browns, 4-1, with Jack Knott pitching five-hit ball.

The Washington Senators halted the Detroit Tigers, 5-4, on the steady eight-hit hurling of Sid Hudson.

Rally Takes Close Game

Westinghouse, Yunckers Take League Victories.

Independent league ash-wielders crossed bats last night in two tilts. The Barnes club 10-3 and Westinghouse came from behind to take the Safety Cabs 5-2.

Yunckers moved out to a seven run lead picked up in the first and fourth innings and were never in danger as every batsman but one connected for a bingle.

Channet and Henrich sparked the Westinghouse win at bat as the victors tied the score in the last of the seventh and finally broke up the game with three runs in the last of the eighth. Smollen and Bolin did the heavy stickwork for the Safety Cabs.

* * *

In another scheduled tilt B'nai B'rith won on a forfeit from the Smoke Shop.

M'Neill Shines In Turf Test

Riggs Has Tough Time Getting By Rookie.

SEABRIGHT, N. J. —(AP)— The tennis experts were building themselves up today as pretty smart fellows.

These are the gents, you may recall, who were skeptical on two counts when the 54th annual Sea Bright tournament started. They had their doubts that National Champion Don McNeill should be ignored completely merely because he hadn't been able to win any clay court tournament. They also were not inclined to wax over-enthusiastic about Frankie Parker in spite of his impressive record in the same league.

The experts looked good both ways off yesterday's matches, for McNeill turned in a fine exhibition in his first turf test of the season, and Parker came close to flunking his.

While blond Donald was brushing aside Bob Kerdasha of South Carolina with the loss of only four games, Parker had to call on all his court craft to get by Ed Amark of San Francisco, a comparative "rookie," 7-5, 3-6, 6-2.

McNeill, who goes up against southpaw Seymour Greenberg of Chicago today, was elated over his performance. "It feels good to get back on that stuff," he said with a smile of confidence. "Now I can begin to control my shots."

Marksmen on Ohio Squad

Two Mansfielders In Annual Michigan Shoot.

Two Mansfielders will be on the Ohio rifle team that will face a Michigan squad at Flint, Mich., Sunday in the annual Ohio-Michigan shoot.

L. A. Arntz will lead the Ohio marksmen into action as coach, while John Hunter will be a shooting member of the squad.

STOCKS FAIL TO FIND DIRECTION ON MART TODAY

Bullish Sentiment Checked By Threat of Dislocation In Defense Drive.

NEW YORK—Stocks wandered over a narrow route without much sense of definite direction today. Over a wide area fractional gains and losses were well scrambled near the second hour.

While bullish sentiment held sway in most Wall Street sectors there was more disposition on the part of speculative contingents, brokers said, to ponder the unfavorable implications of industrial dislocations necessitated by the defense drive, particularly the impending move for a sharp curtailment of automobile output.

Somewhat disconcerting to those who have been fretting about widening government controls over established economic processes was the New York commodity exchange's announcement of suspension of trading in copper futures.

Actually, the termination of this business was merely a final stage of liquidation which was clearly foreshadowed when the government began regulation of copper in connection with defense.

Suffered With Kidney, Bladder Trouble for Twenty Years, Bee Bee's Gave Relief

Claims his sleep was broken several times each night by disturbing nightly risings; Suffered severe pains across kidneys. Thanks Bee Bee's for splendid results.

"For nearly 20 years I had so much trouble with my kidneys and bladder that I thought I might never recover," says Mr. Thomas Cochran, Republic, Ohio.

"I took different treatments but received only temporary relief. I had sharp catches across my kidneys. These pains or (catches) were the worst when I got up in the morning, and when I had one of these attacks, I couldn't work or hardly do anything until I moved around. If I bent over to pick up something, it seemed as if the misery in my back would lay me out.

MR. THOMAS COCHRAN

"I had to arise seven or eight times at night and when I got back to my room, I felt so weak that I would fall back into bed. My urine looked bad and burned like fire. Sometimes the urine was too free and at other times it was too scanty. I also had pains in my prostate gland and in my neck.

"I took Bee Bee's and now I seldom have to get up more than once at night. I sleep well and feel fine and full of energy when I get up in the morning. Pains across my back and other above miseries were relieved and I feel 20 years younger. I have recommended Bee Bee's to others who were ailing like me and I will continue to spread the good word about Bee Bee's. It's a grand, effective medicine.

CORNERSTONE TO BE PLACED AT BUCYRUS 'Y'

Manufacturer, Whose Gift of $18,000 Made New Building Possible, To Be Honored.

BUCYRUS — R. L. Dickinson, New York City, national Y. M. C. A. secretary, will be present and offer the dedicatory remarks at the laying of the cornerstone for Bucyrus' new Y. M. C. A. building, Sunday afternoon.

The stone will be placed by John Q. Shunk, Bucyrus manufacturer and philanthropist, who made the building possible by contributing $18,000 for the purpose.

Bucyrus Male chorus will have a part in the program which will be held on the outside of the structure unless rain makes it necessary to hold the service inside the old part of the building.

The new structure will replace one gutted by fire last winter. The swimming pool and gymnasium remain in the old building.

CADDY SHORTAGE

BUCYRUS — Many Bucyrus golfers are being forced to carry their own bags this summer due to the shortage of caddies, Pro William Musterd announced today.

Vacancies in industry have taken all of the older caddies and less than a dozen experienced caddies are now listed at the course, Musterd stated.

A similar condition exists throughout the country, the pro has reported.

NEW PRESIDENT

BUCYRUS—Elected at the annual convention in Columbus this week, Rev. L. L. Zimmerman of the Bucyrus Nazarene church will serve as president of the state organization of young people.

More than 4,000 young people are enrolled in the organization, for which he has served as vice president for the last four years.

Dear Customer:

Should you buy coal now?

We don't want to scare anybody—and this isn't writen in hysteria—but we do sincerely feel that if we did not tell you the actual facts as we see them, we would not be properly serving our customers.

Unlike any year for over a decade, there are some conditions which might make coal hard to get next winter.

Here they are:

1. Stocks are lower now than they ever have been due to the strike.
2. Many miners are now in the army.
3. Many mine mechanics have gone into armament work.
4. The railroads are similarly affected.
5. Many coal cars are now being used to haul defense materials.
6. With more amaments and winter's demand for coal, all of these factors may become more acute.

BUT—one thing is sure—if your winter's coal is in your bin you won't have to worry about getting the coal or the kind of coal you want.

Will you phone us TODAY?

Sincerely,

KENT RUMMEL COAL CO.
